Two-Hour Conference

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) announced last night plans have been postponed for a special House investigation of Washington gambling.

Instead, Davis said that the special House District crime investigation committee will concentrate on perfecting a program for improved Washington law enforcement based on a preliminary report prepared by Committee Counsel Hyman I. Fischbach.

Davis heads the investigating committee.

The Fischbach report was outlined to leading Federal and District law enforcement officials here at a two-hour conference on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Await Tygoon Probe

Proposals for an all-out investigation of District gambling had been the chief ingredient of a request by the Davis Committee for $40,000 in additional House funds to continue its work.

Now, Davis said, the plan is to await developments of the proposed investigation of interstate crime syndicates.

Davis said the main purpose of his group now will be to work out the program for which Fischbach's report provides a starting point.

Davis said, too, that the officials at yesterday's meeting may become the nucleus for a continuing council on law enforcement here. They will be helping work out the program of improved law enforcement for which the Davis committee was formed, it was suggested.

Would Close Loopholes

Fischbach's recommendations are aimed generally at closing loopholes through which criminals may now slip to freedom and at increasing the penalties for criminal repeaters.

Included are proposals to give the police more men and better pay, and equip them with increased powers for arresting and quizzing suspects. Other proposals would revise present methods of the prosecutors' offices and of the Washington courts to eliminate all possible ways in which persons may be cleared of charges short of final trial.

In the report, Fischbach included a blueprint for a crackdown on gamblers. One way would be to confiscate their autos by law. Another would be to define known gamblers and their employes as vagrants and deal with them as such. Two-time gambling offenders would for a period of 10 years be dealt with as habitual criminals. Licenses of business establishments where gambling is permitted would be forfeited for five years.

A sweeping revision of laws and regulations under which bondsmen operate here is suggested.

Robertson Opposes Comptroller Transfer

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) introduced a bill yesterday to block President Truman's proposal to place the comptroller of currency's functions under the Treasury Secretary.

Robertson told the Senate Mr. Truman's reorganization plan would strip the comptroller of his independent status and his control of national bank examiners.

Bandits Foil Pursuers, Flee With $3887

By Judy Spivak and Robert Thompson
Post Reporters

Police in nearby Virginia pursued and then hunted unsuccessfully last night a car believed to contain three bandits who committed a $3887 payroll holdup in Arlington yesterday afternoon.

A State trooper sighted an auto answering description of the bandit car on Highway 1, near Triangle, 35 miles to the south of Washington. By the time he could turn and pursue, it was out of sight.

At Woodbridge, a garage attendant told him the car had passed through at about 70 miles per hour. Roadblocks close to Alexandria and Arlington were set up. A police search through the entire area, coordinated by radio, began when the pursuit failed.

The holdup, by two heavily-armed bandits, wearing dark glasses, took place shortly before 3 p. m., in the office of N. W. Martin & Bros., Inc., a sheet metal works, at 1429 N. Quincy st., Arlington. A goggled driver waited outside in the escape car.

From their descriptions and method of operation, police were convinced that they were the same pair that robbed the office of Local 102, Sheet Metal Workers Union, 1017 K st. nw., of $1000 here Thursday.

Four persons in the Martin office were lined against a wall, while 50 men in the noisy shop, only a few feet away, were unaware of the robbery.

The total payroll money in the office was $7600, company officials said, but some of it had been placed in a metal box which the bandits missed.

They escaped in a 1949, green Mercury car, with license plates which police broadcast as Tennessee 12507. All bridges to Washington were blocked by police immediately, but the bandit car failed to appear. Police were convinced that it was a stolen car.

Nov. 7 Crucial For Liberalism, Truman Says

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday the November 7 elections "may well be one of the most crucial tests of liberalism in this country."

He declared we are "on the eve of another test between those who believe as we do and those who would try to lead us back to an unhappy past rather than forward to a glorious future."

The President expressed his views in a message to Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), head of Americans for Democratic Action, national political organization which opened its annual convention at the Shoreham Hotel last night. The message was sent from Mr. Truman's vacation home in Key West.

President Truman told Senator Humphrey and the 600 delegates of the pro-Fair Deal, anti-Communist organization:

"We know who is allied on each side for the record is written for all to see in the annals of the Eighty-first Congress. The struggle will not be a minor one. Those who oppose us have large funds and sympathetic assistance from much of the press, and on these they place their main reliance."

Truman Approves Bill to Increase Cotton Acreage

President Truman last night signed the cotton-peanut acreage bill, that will add an estimated 1,200,000 acres to this year's price-supported cotton crop, and about 100,000 acres to price-supported peanuts.

He had been bombarded by a cross-fire of recommendations, some urging that he veto the bill, others asking approval. He acted at the "winter White House" at Key West, Fla.

1238 Bell-Pushers Expect 110,000 Count in Area Today

The Nation's seventeenth decennial census begins today in every part of the country—the biggest count in all our history.

Today is "E" Day" with E for enumeration. Every person alive in the Nation will be counted in determining just how much America has grown in the 10 years since the last big count. There's no doubt it's been the biggest population growth for any decade since the first count in 1790.

For urban areas the 140,000 enumerators have two weeks to complete the job.

In Washington today 792 enumerators are expected to ring 20,000 doorbells and count around 70,000 of the estimated 900,000 people in the District.

In the rest of what is now Metropolitan Washington (Alexandria plus Arlington and Fairfax counties in Virginia and Montgomery and Prince Georges counties in Maryland) 446 enumerators will canvass 12,000 dwellings to count about 40,000 of the estimated 600,000 who live in the suburban areas.

Thus the first day should bring a census taker to from 7 to 8 percent of all the area's homes.

The one question about which there has been any controversy is the one about your income. Every fifth person 14 or over will be asked to tell how much he took in last year in wages or salary, from his busness and from rents, royalties, dvidends and interest.

The Census Bureau points out that answers to this and all other questions are to be kept confidential. A presidential proclamation has pointed out the information cannot be used "for purposes of taxation, investigation or regulation or in connection with military or jury service, the compulsion

House Votes Kerr Gas Bill By 176-174

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The hotly contested Kerr natural gas bill, exempting independent gas producers from Federal price regulation, last night was sent to the White House by a photo-finish 176-to-174 House vote.

Final passage followed one of the stormiest debates of the session, aligning legislators from the consuming North and East against the oil and gas producing Southwest.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) practically snatched the bill from defeat by taking the floor at the last minute to answer charges that the bill will skyrocket gas prices.

"In my opinion," insisted Rayburn, "this will not raise the price of gas to consumers one red cent."

Crosser Disputes Claim

But Representative Robert Crosser (D., Ohio), chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, took vigorous issue with the Speaker. Crosser arose earlier from his wheelchair to shout:

"In my opinion, the wrath of the American people will rise to plague those who support this bill."

During a touch-and-go roll call, the "Aye" votes trailed the "Noes" right up to the finish. Then four members, (three of them Republicans), switched from "No" to "Aye," to give the measure a two-vote edge.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP., N. Y.) demanded a recapitulation of the close count, but the second tally confirmed the first.

The Four Who Switched

The four members who switched their votes to put the bill over were Representatives Paul W. Shafer (R., Mich.), Earl Wilson (R., Ind.), Henry Latham (R., N. Y.), and Morgan W. Moulder (D., Mo.).

The bill passed the Senate Wednesday by an almost as close 44 to 38 vote amid similar charges and denials that it will raise natural gas prices.

Last session the House passed the original legislation with little furor. Yesterday's final House concurrence action came on a Senate amendment put in as a mild concession to the stormy opposition. This authorized a continuing study by the Federal Power Commission to determine whether gas prices or supplies are adversely affected by lack of competition among gas producers. But opponents said the FPC already has that authority.

The bill now goes to the President, who has the last say. If he signs, some Senate Republicans have said they will make it a "special interest" campaign issue. Both Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), who led the Senate opposition, and House Interstate Commerce Chairman Crosser have strongly urged him to veto the bill.

Pipelines and pipeline affiliates are now subject to Federal price regulations but the so-called independent producers who sell at "arms length" to the interstate dealers have been free of regulation since the passage of the 1938 Natural Gas Act. The exemption passed yesterday was first introduced after a Supreme Court ruling indicated the FPC may now have regulatory authority over the whole field.

Speaker Rayburn personally stepped in to speed House action.

Lattimore Set No Policies, Acheson Says

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Acheson yesterday denied that Owen Lattimore, branded by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) as a Soviet spy, was the architect of American Far Eastern policy.

Acheson said he did not think, in fact, that he had ever even met Lattimore.

In a four-hour Senate speech the previous day, McCarthy charged that Lattimore, an authority for many years on the Far East and now a Johns Hopkins University professor, was responsible for the framing of the present State Department policy toward China.

He said he had affidavits and names of prospective witnesses that would prove Lattimore was involved in Russian espionage and is, or has been, a member of the Communist Party.

McCarthy's office said McCarthy, as he promised, was in touch with the FBI and that that agency now has the paper that McCarthy produced.

[Two witnesses on whom McCarthy is counting to prove some of his allegations against Lattimore are Louis F. Budenz, once editor of the Daily Worker, and Alexander Barmine, former Red Army general, Bert Andrews, New York Herald Tribune correspondent, reported.

[Andrews said a witness McCarthy referred to as being high in the Communist Party and as knowing that Lattimore was subject to party discipline is Budenz.

[Barmine, he said, is the former Soviet General who heard about espionage help from Lattimore from a Russian Army Intelligence officer in 1935 or 1936.—Editor's note.]

McCarthy In Hospital

The Wisconsin Senator himself was in a local hospital yesterday, receiving treatment for sinus trouble.

Acheson, appearing at his press conference yesterday morning, was obviously primed for questions arising from McCarthy's speech of the day before.

The burden of his answers was that Lattimore never has been employed by the State Department and that his contacts with that agency have been limited to a few occasions. He said he has been informed that Lattimore never had a desk in the department.

Michael J. McDermott, the department's press officer, told reporters that Lattimore was among a group of 31 persons, mostly educators, who were asked to submit their views on the China situation last August.

He said these observations were used as "background" material for a Far Eastern study made by the three-man commission set up by the President.

This board was composed of

McCarthy Charges Fizzled, McGrath Says

Secretary Sees Less Incentive to States

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., March 31 (AP).—A top-rank Truman Administration official tonight called for a halt in Federal cash grants to the States for old-age pensions.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer charged the grants "tended to become more and more of a burden on the Federal Government, with less and less incentive upon the State to make the conditions of payment reasonable."

"Government should not pay out benefits regardless of the taxpayer," he added.

The Cabinet officer, in a speech prepared for a group of advertising agency executives, also proposed some major changes in public and private old-age pension arrangements, including:

1. Encouraging private pension plans, which now cover four to five million people, and changing income tax laws to "permit deductions of contributions of employes to pension funds."

2. Holding Government benefits

No New Civil Defense Body To Be Sought

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Administration informed Congress yesterday that it will not seek legislation this year to set up an "operating" civil defense agency.

Paul J. Larson, director of the Office of Civilian Mobilization, told the Senate Armed Services Committee of the decision. He said the Administration felt that further Federal legislation is not necessary at this time.

There has been recent criticism of the Government for lagging in its defense preparations in this field. The American Legion and other groups have been charging that lack of a ready national civil defense organization against

British Death Rate Dips in 1949

London, March 31 (U.P.).—The British death rate for 1948-49—the period in which the National Health Service was launched—was the lowest in the Nation's history, the Health Ministry announced today.

The mortality rate for all Britons, including soldiers abroad, was 10.8 per 1000 during the year ended March 31, 1949—lowest on record.

(No exactly comparable figures have been published in the United States, but the United States Public Health Service said today the United States death rate for 1948 was 9.9 per 1000. The estimated death rate for 1949 was 9.7.)

Surplus Food for West Berlin Sought to Help Against Reds

A plan to aid Berliners resist "a massive invasion" of the Western Zone by armed Communists was outlined yesterday by a committee headed by Richard E. Byrd, Lucius D. Clay and Sumner Welles.

Pointing out that the invasion was planned for the weekend of May 27, the committee appealed for private contributions to help pay costs of shipping United States surplus food to the West Berliners.

The outcome of the crisis, the three said, "may decide the entire course of the struggle between totalitarian Sovietism and Western Democracy."

This Government has warned that it will "resist force with force in Berlin," the committee declared, but it also warned that the "psychological resistance of West Berliners is now worn thin by prolonged hardship and mass unemployment."

"We plan to deliver a minimum of two million pounds of Government agricultural surplus powdered milk and eggs for free distribution to needy children and East Zone refugees in Berlin immediately prior to the Communist invasion," the committee declared.

It explained that the Commodity Credit Corporation makes surpluses available at a cost of inland transportation only. ECA reimburses ocean transportation.

"Each $1000 donated, therefore, delivers 50,000 pounds of concentrated food—valued at nearly $40,000, shipped through the International Rescue Committee, distributed by the Lord Mayor of Western Berlin. Not one dollar will be used for administrative expenses."

Telegrams appealing for the funds were signed by Byrd, Clay and Welles in the name of the Iron Curtain Refugee Campaign and International Rescue Committee, 103 Park ave., New York

Teller Vote Ends Threat To Withhold British Aid

Burleson Provision On Crops Removed; House Cuts Fund for Point Four Program

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The House finally passed a $3,092,450,000 foreign aid bill yesterday after getting rid of the "Irish amendment" and others that would have crippled or hurt Administration programs.

It knocked out the Burleson amendment which would have compelled the purchase of a billion dollars' worth of American farm products. It approved the Point Four program of technical help for backward areas, although it slashed almost half the amount the Administration had sought for this purpose.

In general, the bill emerged from a week of bitter debate just about as the Administration wanted it, except for the cut of 20 million dollars in Point Four and the cut of 250 million, approved earlier in the week, in funds for the third year of the Marshall Plan.

For the Marshall Plan, $2,700,000,000, plus 150 million carried over from this year;

For aid to Korea, 100 million;

For economic help in Formosa, Hainan and "the general area of China," 94 million in funds left over from this year;

For Chinese students stranded in this country, six million;

For the relief of Arab refugees, $27,450,000; and

For technical help under Point Four, 25 million.

The final roll call vote that sent the huge bill to the Senate was 287 to 86. An earlier Republican attempt to send the bill back to the Foreign Affairs Committee was beaten on a roll call by 220 to 150.

No Roll Call on Ireland

Smart generalship by Speaker Sam Rayburn, with the help of Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) spared members the embarrassment of having to answer to their names to get rid of the "Irish amendment," which would have denied help to Britain until the partition of Ireland had ended.

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), a backer of the "Irish amendment," demanded a roll call that would have let constituents know how their Congressmen voted. But the rules require that one fifth of the members on the floor have to get up and be counted in support of a roll call.

Speaker Rayburn saw to it that the biggest possible crowd was on hand; he hustled the Democrats out of the cloakrooms and onto the floor, until about 300 members were present. On the Republican side Martin kept his seat, which was a signal to many other Republicans to do the same.

The result was that only 47 members, not enough for a roll call, stood up. The House then

Bridges Jury Goes To Bed After 6½ Hours' Discussion

San Francisco, March 31 (U.P.).—The perjury-conspiracy case of Harry Bridges and two union aides was given to a Federal court jury today.

Six hours and 29 minutes later the jury was locked up for the night after failing to reach a verdict.

Federal Judge George B. Harris finished nearly two hours of detailed instructions at 3:10 EST to finish formally the longest criminal case in the 100-year history of Northern California Federal district courts. At 3:43 p. m. the judge submitted the case to the jury. They must decide whether Bridges was a Communist and conspired with Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson to lie about his party membership so he could become a United States citizen.

The jury later went to dinner but returned at 11:05 p. m. (EST). Bridges was in a jovial mood and asked, "Anybody wanta bet?"

It was the eighty-first day of the trial—29-years and seven months since Bridges, 48-year-old boss of 75,000 West Coast longshoremen, stepped on United States soil for the first time at New Orleans from the barkentine Ysobel out of his native Australia.

No New Civil Defense Agency to Be Asked

atomic attack was endangering the country.

Some critics charged that the failure to act was due to a desire not to throw another "complication" into public thinking during an election year.

Behind Closed Doors

Larson testified behind closed doors but afterward a "summation" of his testimony was released to the press. His office, a section of the National Security Resources Board, is charged only with planning for civil defense. There is no Federal "operating" agency for the purpose at present—one of the chief objections of critics.

"The National Plan," said Larson, "can, in our estimation be implemented by the States and local communities for the present, without necessity for Federal civil defense legislation . . .

"Additional legislation will be requested when appropriate in order that the Federal Government can implement its planning, training and operating program, in order to establish supplies for emergency uses and to establish an operating Federal organization."

The "summation" did not say when the latter would come, but Senators said Larson talked about next fall.

Decision Not Yet Made

Defenders of the Government program have said that a main reason for not going ahead now is that civil defense against atomic attack presents such vast problems, involving not only huge costs but possible additional drastic powers, that decisions just have not been made.

The announcement this week that Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington will be nominated as chairman of the National Security Resources Board gave cause to believe that civil defense planning will be speeded.

The agency has been without a permanent head for a year, and Symington has a reputation of being an "action" man. Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee—both Democrats and Republicans—praised Symington's selection and predicted that he would be speedily confirmed.

In his testimony yesterday, Larson said he believes a "large Federal organization" never will be necessary for civil defense. Most of it will be handled on the local level. He listed these as "basic responsibilities" of the Federal Government prior to mobilization:

1. "Formalizing" a Federal plan for acceptance by the States.
2. Aiding States in training volunteer workers, and establishment of national schools for training key personnel.
3. Evaluation of the requirements of equipment and resources needed for civil defense and the determination of what the Federal Government must provide.
4. Evaluation of the effects of A-bombs and other weapons to determine what dispersion and evacuation is necessary.
5. Maintenance of "critical" reserve stores and their control and distribution.
6. Education of the public as to the dangers of attack without incurring hysteria or fear.

Baruch Wants U. S. Ready

special adviser to the World War II Office of War Mobilization.

Without making any predictions as to actual war, Baruch pictured Russia as "fomenting" civil war abroad.

"Today there is a general realization that peace is impossible unless supported by military strength," he said.

Baruch listed as one of the "essentials of a successful cold war strategy" this plan—"a ready-to-go mobilization plan which will insure the swiftest mobilization of all our resources—men, money and materials—in case we or our allies are attacked."

Such a war preparation, he said, "should be put into law now, to go into instant operation upon the joint proclamation of war by the Congress and the President."

Here is how Baruch would mobilize the Nation's resources: a draft law with a "work or fight" clause; a "readied" civilian defense; priority to military production which would include power to curtail less essential operations; "much higher taxes;" ceilings on prices, rents, wages and "other costs" to prevent inflation; rationing of scarce essentials; "elimination of profiteering."

Apart from mobilization Baruch sees these other cold war essentials:

"A military establishment which includes not only an immediately available striking force . . . but one flexible enough to deal with possible civil war abroad.

"An effective intelligence agency to provide the information needed to pace ourselves in relation to the Soviets and the threat of war.

"A general staff for peace to re-evaluate the whole of the peace-waging and to formulate a global strategy mhich will achieve a decision for peace."

The elderly financier who has been called upon in many crisis consultations said he sees "a sufficient degree of stability" existing now in western Europe.

But, he added: "In China we have suffered a truly serious defeat. Sooner or later we must expect a showdown over Germany."

He said recent proposals by Senator Vandenberg for a peace-making group did not "go far enough." What is needed, he said, as a general staff for peace is "a nonpartisan group that will stay on the job until the cold war is won."

Referring to Russian thrusts abroad, Baruch declared:

"In short, I believe our defensive strategy must not only anticipate the danger of another all-out war but that of civil war as well."

People Realize Danger to U. S., Publisher Says

continued vacancies in vital Federal establishments, "a near chaotic state" of central intelligence agencies, unsteady relations between Defense and State Departments, poor organization of foreign economic policy.

2. Weakness of the Republican Party.

3. Refusal of Washington and the country to subordinate some domestic quarrels to the problems of sheer survival.

Which Issues to Shelve?

Graham acknowledged the difficulty of deciding which domestic issues ought to be "put in the deep-freeze" while the Nation is facing up to an external threat; but he urged efforts to find the means of postponing some issues until they can be settled by consent and without tearing basic unity apart.

While the national situation is in many respects better than it has been in earlier periods of crisis in American history, the danger is greater, the publisher warned. He expressed the belief that civilization is at stake in the present crisis with the real peril lying not just in the Russian manifestation of Leninism but in the system itself.

"Possibility of 'coexistence' to which Stalin refers with purring calm at intervals that suit his purposes is obviously inconceivable," Graham contended.

Contributions by Business

In discussing the contribution that business can make to winning the cold war, Graham referred to the criticisms of American business by James Burnham, in his recent book, "The Coming Defeat of Communism." But he expressed faith that these libels would be belied by future efforts of the business community.

Graham thought American business could and would aid in the cold war by:

(1) The use of advertising resources which "can do an unparalleled job of keeping the facts before us."

(2) Providing manpower to help Government overcome one of its weaknesses.

(3) Helping to revitalize the Republican party which historically has been the party supported by business.

(4) Taking the lead in arranging in each community armistices in fights that are disrupting unity.

The major contribution of business to cold war victory, he told the advertising group, was in "keeping our flag flying here at home." This effort, he pointed out, could be furthered by businessmen in a hundred different ways.

to "a minimum protection to prevent dependency," and encouraging private pension plans "to give whatever benefits in addition thereto a private enterprise feels to be just and desirable."

3. Extending social security to all workers not now covered by the Government's social security system.

Sawyer, who built a fortune as a Cincinnati lawyer and business man, urged business to try to regain its "lost" political influence "so that business, as well as agriculture and labor, becomes a major concern of Government and the public at large."

To labor, he directed a warning that "great responsibility" goes with its mightily increased powers and that it should "recognize that its greatest benefits will come from prosperous and not from weakened American business."

But Sawyer, addressing the American Association of Advertising Agencies and the Association of National Advertisers, directed most of his remarks at business, urging it to take a bigger part in social security and welfare undertakings.

"Our system of doing business is inseparable from the texture and pattern of our civilization," Sawyer asserted, and "business would be a shrunken and pitiable thing if it had not enjoyed the stimulus and strength of advertising."

In suggesting ways for business to recover the influence he said it had lost the Commerce Secretary declared:

"Stepping out of the strictly business field and into the larger field, business should do things—not talk about things, but do things—for the benefit of the public at large."

Czechs Say 2 Priests Admit to Treason

Prague, March 31 (AP).—Two high-ranking Roman Catholic clergymen pleaded guilty to high treason today, the official Czech news agency said, as the country's first mass trial of churchmen opened.

Ten clergymen are charged with high treason, espionage for the Vatican, antistate activities, and plotting the armed overthrow of the Communist regime.

The news agency identified those who confessed as Abbot Bohumil Vit Tajovsky of the monastery at Zeliva in central Bohemia, and Abbot Augustin Machalka of the monastery of Nova Rise. The agency said Abbot Machalka confessed also to espionage.

Altogether six accused clerics were called to the witness stand before the court recessed until Saturday.

The agency said three—Frantisek Silhan, identified as provincial (director) of the Order of Jesuits, Jesuit Monk Adolph Kaipr and Stanislav Bartak, a monk at Nova Rise—pleaded innocent.

It said Frantisek Mikulasek, a Jesuit monk, pleaded "partly guilty," admitting he was "associated" with antistate activities.

The trial opened amid these other developments:

1. The government denounced its agreement with the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe (Care). Director Herbert Lass was told Care must cease operating by July 31. Three other international relief organizations had been ordered out yesterday.

2. United Press Correspondent John R. Higgins was told to get out of the country by April 15. The charge was "unobjective reporting," the same as that made Wednesday against Nate Polowetzky, AP correspondent, who must leave by April 8.

The news agency reported the indictment said, "after the war Vatican espionage service was joined with the United States organization, the Counter Intelligence Corps. Their activities were concentrated mainly against the People's (Communist) Democracies which they wanted to liquidate."

The news agency said Jesuits were told to spy; Jesuits and Redemptionists to distort education to the use of the reactionaries; Franciscans to start an armed uprising and a Dominican monk "to oversee the anti-State policy of the high church hierarchy."

At New York

1st Arms Aid To Italians Aboard Ship

New York, March 31 (AP).—With an Army band playing and flags of the Atlantic Pact nations flying, the first shipment of arms to Italy under the Western defense alliance was hoisted aboard an American freighter today.

The event was hailed by Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as a proof of "our unswerving support of friendly nations in their struggle against aggression."

The American Export Lines freighter Exilona will carry it to an Italian port Army authorities have refused to identify.

High Army officers mingled with diplomatic officials from the United States and Italy among the onlookers. The Voice of America relayed the program in Italian to Italy.

Ridgeway, Army deputy chief of staff for administration, said the occasion was "further proof of the uncompromising standard of America in the fight for freedom."

James Bruce, director of the rearmament program, said that with increased security the Western nations "will reap visible rewards in the creation of an atmosphere more favorable to prosperity and stability."

Reds in Italy Order Protests Over Arms

Rome, March 31 (U.P.).—The Communist Party today said the shipment of United States arms to Italy sounded "the alarm for war" and ordered party followers to organize protest demonstrations.

The Communists linked drastic new police measures with the military aid shipments as "concrete and immediate preparations for war."

The Government, a spokesman disclosed, has taken all the steps it considers necessary to guard against trouble when the arms arrive.

The spokesman said, "Our plans are a secret. The Communists will find out what they are when the time comes."

Belgians Ratify Arms Pact Despite Leopold Crisis

Brussels, March 31 (AP).—Despite Belgium's political crisis over King Leopold, the caretaker government has ratified the treaty providing for American arms shipments, official sources said today.

Prince Charles, the regent, and Foreign Minister Van Zeeland signed the treaty. There had been reports the crisis would delay ratification and arrival of the arms.

When Parliament convenes it will be asked to approve the treaty. This was regarded as certain since only the small Communist minority is in opposition.

Bonn to End Sugar Ration

Bonn, March 31 (AP).—The West German Government today decided sugar no longer will be rationed after May 1. It is the only remaining rationed food.

Million in Art, Wines Found in Goering Castle

Munich, March 31 (U.P.).—Americans and Germans digging in Hermann Goering's Feldenstein Castle uncovered an estimated $1 million worth of works of art and rare wines and liquor today.

The treasure was in an underground concrete chamber of the castle in the Bavarian village of Neuhaus.

The Washington Post

FIRST IN 50 YEARS—The destroyer escort Robert F. Keller, veteran of the Pacific war, was welcomed to the training fleet at the Naval Gun Factory yesterday, following ceremonies last acted here in 1880. Chief Boatswain Joseph W. Lomax, USN, 319 Pennsylvania ave. se., talks "Navy" to his 3-year-old daughter, Linda Lee, who was the youngest observer at the commissioning

A formal naval ceremony which had not been seen at the Naval Gun Factory for 70 years was enacted there yesterday as two vessels were recommissioned for duty in the reserve fleet.

The ceremonies of recommissioning the destroyer escort Robert F. Keller, veteran of a year of war in the Pacific, and the patrol craft PC 1168, were simple and brief.

Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, USN, first was piped aboard the Keller, accompanied by Rear Admiral Frank Fahrion, superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory, and members of his staff. Then the Navy band struck up the "Admirals' March."

With the ship's company of four officers and 77 enlisted men standing at attention on the desk, and members of their families looking on, Admiral Davis welcomed the ship and its crew to the training fleet and directed that the commission pennant be hoisted

As the long, thin streamer rose up the mainmast, Boatswain's Mate 2/c George Witmer of 6 Leeward Green sw. sounded his boatswain's pipe and called, "Set the watch!"

Admiral Davis then announced he was turning over the command of the ship to Commander Hugh H Lewis, USN, of 5202 Augusta st., Glen Mar Park, Md. Comdr. Lewis read the orders designating him as captain, and then took the Admiral's party over the Keller.

A similar ceremony turned over the command of the PC 1168 to Chief Boatswain Joseph W. Lomax, USN, of 319 Pennsylvania ave. se. The band concluded the formalities by playing "Nancy Lee" and "Sailing, Sailing."

Irish Clause Killed; House Passes ECA Bill

knocked the amendment out of the bill by a standing vote of 226 to 60.

So there will be nothing in the record to show Irish districts which Representatives failed to stand by the cause of Ireland. And there will be nothing, likewise, to show which Representatives were determined to knock Britain out of the Marshall Plan, and produce a first-class crisis abroad, to make an Irish holiday.

The election-minded members from Irish districts did get one small consolation. Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee promised to hold hearings in 10 days on half a dozen resolutions in favor of ending the partition of Ireland. Kee said his personal hope was that at least one of these resolutions would be reported to the floor.

The Point Four program was in danger several times during the tense debating and voting yesterday. Speaker Rayburn himself had to make one of his rare speeches from the floor to turn the tide.

"The people of the democracies are living in the most dangerous period they have ever lived in," the Speaker told the hushed and attentive House.

"Do we want friends in the world? Do we need friends? Suppose the democracies of Europe don't hold, where will we be if a war should come? Unless we have a footing in Europe, the next war will have to be fought in our own Western Hemisphere. You don't want that. I don't want that.

"The money needed for Point Four is a paltry amount. Yet it might give others the strength so that in years to come, when we need them, they can stand up with us and make this world a decent place to live in."

In spite of this appeal, all but 20 Republicans on the floor voted for an amendment by Representative Lawrence Smith (R., Wis.), to kill the Point Four program. They had the help of about 22 Democrats, but their attempt failed by a teller vote of 189 to 141.

Earlier, however, Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) had led a successful fight, with substantial Democratic help, to cut the Point Four program from 45 million to 25 million dollars.

Since 10 million of the Administration's request was for existing technical aid programs, this meant that Point Four would get only 15 million dollars of new money—unless the Senate gave it more. The vote on Herter's proposal was 117 to 78. Administration forces then tried to restore half the cut, but again failed by 137 to 95.

The Republicans, led by Representative John Vorys (Ohio), made still another attempt to cut the program, this time by an amendment requiring that the American contribution to United Nations technical aid be limited to 39 percent of the world total. The Administration just squeaked through on this one, defeating Vorys' plan by 146 to 137.

Vorys did succeed, however, with another amendment forbidding any new employe to be hired under Point Four until the FBI had checked him for loyalty and reported its findings. A few minor amendments were adopted without appreciably changing the form or scope of the program.

Administrator Paul Hoffman of the ECA was in the gallery when the House defeated the Burleson amendment for the compulsory use of American farm products.

The House buried the amendment under a standing vote of 198 to 70. Farm bloc representatives were somewhat mollified by hearing an official assurance from ECA that it would buy a billion dollars' worth of American farm products anyway if Europe's need for these products "develops as anticipated."

U. S. Reported Backing Spain For Europe Defense Role

The Hague, March 31 (NYHT).—Incorporation of Spain into the West Europe defense system is receiving increasing unofficial support from American planners, it was learned today on the eve of the meeting of the Defense Ministers of the 12 Atlantic Pact countries.

The idea is that Spain, with the United Kingdom and Turkey, would provide bases for American long-range bombers to operate against the Soviet Union in the event of war.

There is no thought now that Franco's government would be invited to become a full member of the Alliance. It would be inconceivable, however, that Spain could be asked to provide bases without being in effect welcomed back into the family of nations.

Concessions that would have to be made to Spain might include restoration of normal diplomatic relations and resumption of closer commercial ties.

There has been a difference of opinion between the United States Defense and State Departments on whether Spain should be asked to play a role in Western military plans. The Defense Department, placing strategic considerations above possibe political repercussions, is winning the argument, an informed source said today.

It is likely the whole question will be held in abeyance until the London meetings in May of the big-three Foreign Ministers of the United States, Britain and France and of the 12-nation Atlantic Pact Council. The project involves such a radical departure in policy it would have to be approved by the heads of state.

Strong American Note Seen As Rebuke to Greek Premier

Athens, March 31 (AP).—United States Ambassador Henry F. Grady, in a tough-talking letter to the premier, warned Greece today that "only a government which can secure public confidence" can expect continued American aid.

It was the strongest language yet used by an official United States Representative in a Marshall Plan country, and it raised immediate speculation that the United States has, in effect, invited Premier Sophocles Venizelos either to resign or to broaden the base of his government.

The letter laid down a bundle of complaints against the Greek government; complaints of special privilege, inefficiency, subsidies, overcentralized power, high interest rates, superabundance of ministries, excessive spending, absence of an adequate social program and a number of others.

Venizelos discussed the letter with his cabinet this afternoon. When he emerged from the meeting he told reporters it did not change the position of his government because it was a "routine" letter such as is sent every new government.

However, sources close to the United States Embassy said the letter was "anything but routine." These informants said the letter was an unprecedented "bombshell."

Venizelos has just formed a Liberal-National Union cabinet in which the only National Unionist is former Premier Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Vice Premier and Defense Minister. The Liberal Party holds only 55 seats in the 250-member Parliament just elected, but it has the backing of rightist groups.

China Giving Soviet Rights In Sinkiang

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Acheson charged yesterday that China's Communist government had handed over to Russia, in a secret agreement made in Moscow, "preeminent rights" in the strategic western Chinese province of Sinkiang.

This effect of "one of the unpublished agreements" of the Sino-Soviet conference of a few weeks ago, Acheson said, was disclosed by the announcement this week of agreements for Russian exploitation of the mineral and petroleum resources of the huge province.

Under these agreements, announced in both China and Russia, each country will receive one-half of the mineral and petroleum production. Acheson said that the device of the joint stock company is the same as that which has been used to advance "Soviet economic penetration and control in Manchuria and eastern Europe."

Other Developments

His news conference renewal of his contention that Russia is gobbling up great areas of Northern and Western China coincided with two other developments in United States relations with the Far East:

1. President Truman, it was learned, has approved the principle of State and Defense department proposals for giving American military aid totaling about 30 million dollars to Indonesia, Siam and Indochina. Detailed plans of arms shipments have yet to be approved by the chief executive, however. Officials said that it might be a few weeks yet before shipments can be started.

2. Acheson told his news conference that the State Department and the American President Lines, a private steamship company, are now working on a new plan to remove 400 Americans and 1200 other aliens from Communist-controlled Shanghai. He said he hoped the Communists would permit two shallow-draft Chinese ships to ferry the refugees down a shallow but unmined mouth of the Yangtze to a point where they could be picked up by commercial ships being chartered in Manila.

Most Definite Steps Yet

The proposals for sending military assistance to the three southeast Asian countries mark the most definite steps yet taken to strengthen the available military forces of those countries against the spread of communism southward from China.

The money would come from a 75-million-dollar fund which Congress voted last fall for fighting communism in the area of China. Indo-China would get about 15 million dollars worth of arms; Siam . .10 million dollars and Indonesia five million dollars under defense department recommendations to Mr. Truman.

Assistance to those countries which will also include economic aid, is part of a program which the Truman Administration is now devising on the basis of the foreign policy laid down by Acheson with the President's approval last winter.

A major aim of this policy in addition to strengthening the non-Communist peoples of Asia is to prove that Russia—not the United States or Britain or France—is the real enemy of freedom and the real carrier of a new imperialism in Asia today. Along with this is the argument that sovietism and Chinese communism at present mean the same thing.

Charge Made Previously

Three months ago Acheson charged that the Russians were detaching from China and fastening to the Soviet Union the areas of Manchuria, Inner and Outer Mongolia and Sinkiang.

He referred to that fact in his statement yesterday and reminded his news conference also that when the Russian-Chinese conferences in Moscow ended earlier this year he had declared that the important thing about the agreements reached was not what they said but what they did. He had then suggested also that there were secret agreements as well as treaty of friendship and alliance which was then announced.

The new disclosure of the oil and mineral agreements setting up joint Russian-Chinese companies of exploitation in Sinkiang Province means resumption "on a grand scale of the process of detatchment of the province," Acheson said.

Process Began Before War

He declared the process had begun years ago and had been interrupted only briefly during the war.

"It seems clear," Acheson said, "that the effect of one of the unpublished agreements arrived at in Moscow last winter was to award the USSR preeminent rights in China's strategic western province.

"Peoples of Asia will be interested to note that under the terms of the agreement, as announced, one half of the mineral and petroleum production accomplished will go to the USSR, leaving only one half for the use of impoverished China. Evidently, Soviet economic aid is not cheaply bought, requiring, as we see in this case, both impairment of sovereignty and relinquishment of 50 percent of current production."

Murray Is Confirmed With Only 4 on Floor

The Senate yesterday confirmed Thomas E. Murray, New York engineer and inventor, as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Only four Senators were present at the time.

Murray 58, was named by President Truman to fill out the unexpired term of David E. Lilienthal, ending next June 30. He will not, however, assume the chairmanship which Lilienthal held. Sumner T. Pike now is acting chairman.

ARE CHRYSLER EMPLOYEES BEING KEPT ON STRIKE TO FURTHER UAW PLANS ELSEWHERE?

THIS strike is in its 10th week. The Union is telling Chrysler employees to "dig in" for a long strike. How long?

A UAW official says, "'Til hell freezes over." At the bargaining table the UAW has said they do not care whether they adjourn for a day, or a week, or indefinitely. Negotiations have now been recessed. Chrysler has been willing to bargain right along.

Why are Chrysler employees being kept out of work?

• No employee who retires at competitor plants where the UAW has settled gets any better pensions than Chrysler has offered to give.

• No employee who retires at competitor plants where the UAW has settled has any greater security for his pension than Chrysler has offered to put up.

• No employee at competitor plants where the UAW has settled gets any more liberal eligibility terms for retirement than Chrysler has offered.

• No automobile company where the UAW has settled for pensions has made a longer agreement to pay pensions than Chrysler has offered.

What, then, is the Union's purpose in keeping Chrysler people out on strike, depriving them of more than a million dollars a day in wages for more than 9 weeks?

Are Chrysler employees being sacrificed for the Union's purposes in competitive automobile plants?

• It certainly looked that way in January when Chrysler people were called on strike. At that very time the UAW negotiations had hit a serious snag at one of Chrysler's principal competitors. The snag there and the Chrysler strike were two of a kind.

Are Chrysler employees being kept on strike now to further the Union's purposes at another major competitor of Chrysler?

• It certainly looks that way when negotiations have just opened up there and the UAW does not care how long the Chrysler negotiations are adjourned.

Are Chrysler employees being kept on strike in order to fatten up the UAW strike fund?

• It certainly looks that way.

• The UAW'S strike assessments are coming in now, and if the UAW's membership claims are correct, it means more than $2,000,000 a month to the UAW. And these strike assessments can go on for many weeks more.

If th Chrysler strike is for pensions and other benefits comparable with what employees get in competitor plants where the UAW has settled, Chrysler's offer should settle the Chrysler strike.

If the Chrysler strike is for other purposes, what are they?

Chrysler Corporation

What is the Union's purpose in keeping Chrysler people on strike?

Police Sex Files Denied to Senate

The District Commissioners have ordered Metropolitan Police Department files on sex perverts withheld from Senate inspection until they get a legal ruling.

The issue is whether or not to permit the inspection by a member of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee. Such an inspection had been planned by Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), who has been assigned with Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) as a special subcommittee of the District Appropriations group, to plan the next move on dealing with sex perverts in Government jobs.

Wherry was understood to be seeking an opportunity to check the police files for names of Government employes. Wherry is Senate Republican floor leader. His demand to the District Subcommittee, of which Wherry is also a member, led to a bipartisan decision that an effort should be made to clear sex perverts out of Government jobs on the ground that they are dangerous security risks. Wherry and Hill were assigned to work out recommendations on what should be done.

Officials said the idea of Wherry's looking at the files raised two questions:

1. Is the District to be guided by the President's decision withholding loyalty records from Congress, or by the constitutional point that places the District under the exclusive legislative power of Congress.

2. Can the District open its files to a single Senator, even though he is acting as one of a subcommittee investigating a phase of the District government.

The Commissioners denied a suggestion they might have withheld the police files by orders of the White House. Commissioner John Russell Young also declined ot answer questions about the questions raised by the sex perverts problem on the ground it would be "too confusing."

House Passes Kerr Gas Bill

after opponents on Thursday temporarily blocked floor approval. At his request, the House Rules Committee gave the measure a green light under a rule limiting debate to one hour.

But opponents made the most of their limited time. Representative John W. Heselton (R., Mass.), charged it was being "rammed" through, and told the House: "The people who want this are the people who are going to profit by it."

Representative Ray Madden (D., Ind.), called the bill "political dynamite." He predicted gas prices would rise 100 million dollars in a year.

Representative Andrew J. Biemiller (D., Wis.) said it would be the "hottest issue" in the next campaign. Representative Earl C. Michener (R., Mich.), said the bill meant gas-producing States will henceforth fix the price of gas consumed outside their limits.

But Representative John E. Lyle, jr. (D., Tex.) argued it was neither the intent or purpose of the bill to increase gas prices, and it will not increase them.

Representative Charles Halleck (R., Ind.), said that if gas production comes under FPC, the Government "might go on to control the price of coal, oil and other industries."

House Majority Whip Percy Priest (Tenn.) said the legislation was little different from a bill he introduced in the last Congress at the FPC's own request. He said he was informed it was in accord with the President's program.

Then Speaker Rayburn entered the well. Denying the bill favored "the big gas monopolists," Rayburn told the House:

"I don't think in view of my record in this House, I could be accused of having any great desire to serve the interests over the people."

Both parties split sharply in the voting that followed. But unlike the Senate, where Republicans cast the preponderant vote against, Democrats formed the bulk of the opposition.

Here's how the House divided:

For passage—97 Democrats and 79 Republicans. Against passage—116 Democrats, 57 Republicans and one American Labor.

Democrats for the bill included Fugate (Va.), Harrison (Va.), and Smith (Va.).

Republicans for included Beall (Md.), and Miller (Md.).

Democrats against included Bolton (Md.), Burnside (Md.), Burton (Va.), Fallon (Md.), Garmatz (Md.), and Ramsay (W. Va.).

Those paired for included Stanley (D., Va.), and Abbitt (D., Va.). Paired against: Staggers (D., W. Va.).

Judge Rebuked for Barring Red Juror

Philadelphia, March 31 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Supreme Court severely rebuked a Pittsburgh judge who dismissed a woman from grand jury service after she was named as a Communist.

A unanimous opinion yesterday supported Judge M. A. Musmanno on a technicality—but curtly reprimanded him for the tactics by which he refused to allow Mrs. Alice C. Roth to serve.

Mrs. Roth was named as a Communist by former FBI Informer Matthew Cvetic in testimony before the House un-American Activities Committee.

Mrs. Roth's counsel asked for a writ of mandamus to compel Musmanno to allow her to serve.

The court declared that "no further work remains for the grand jury to perform," "for this reason alone, the writ is refused."

"No competently lodged charge against, or trial of, the relator (Mrs. Roth), as those terms are known and understood in the law, was made or accorded," the court said, adding:

"The privileges of serving as a juror is one of the valuable rights of citizenship. Such rights may neither be extinguished, abated nor diminished."

New Trial Asked For Md. Baby Beater

Oakland, Md., March 31. (AP).—Defense attorneys have asked for a new trial for James Roscoe Walburn, 29, who was sentenced to eight years in prison for beating his baby son.

The baby, now 10 onths old, is blind and some of his brain cells have been destroyed. A doctor testified the injuries could have resulted from the beating.

Walburn, an insurance salesman was sentenced Tuesday in Garrett County Circuit Court by Judge Oliver H. Bruce, jr. Attorneys in filing a motion for a retrial termed the sentence excessive on the basis of the evidence given.

McCarthy Is Lauded In Taft's Statement

Portland, Me., March 31 (AP).—Senator Taft (R., Ohio), in a reply to President Truman's criticism of Senate Republicans, said today the facts justify an investigation of the State Department "unhampered by executive obstinacy and name-calling."

The Ohioan, head of the Senate Republican policy committee, defended Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.), instigator of an investigation into alleged communism in the State Department, as a "fighting Marine who risked his life to preserve the liberties of the United States."

McCarthy, chief target of Mr. Truman's press conference remarks yesterday at Key West, Fla., was denounced by the President as "the Kremlin's greatest asset in this country."

Taft replied to what he described as Mr. Truman's "bitter and prejudiced attack on Republicans" in a prepared statement issued soon after he addressed the Maine Republican state convention.

In that address Taft declared "the only way to get rid of the Communists in the State Department is to change the head of the Government."

He said the department could not be rid of Communists while those in control think Communists "are only red herrings."

The term "red herrings"—meaning to divert attention—was used by President Truman to describe House Un-American Activities Committee's investigation of communism.

In a slashing 30-minute attack on the Truman Administration, Taft said the only way to avoid a "creeping socialism is to elect a Republican Congress in 1950 and a Republican President in 1952."

He said that if President Truman is not a Socialist "then he simply does not understand the effect of the measures which he supports."

He told the applauding delegates that the only way to get judicial treatment of labor problems is to elect an impartial president.

To the President's comment that Republican associates of Senator McCarthy are trying to sabotage the bi-partisan foreign policy, Taft replied that the President himself, and not the opposition, has already killed that policy.

The President, Taft said, is using bi-partisan foreign policy as a "slogan to condemn any Republican who disagrees with his unilateral foreign policy."

Taft said the facts warrant an investigation of the State Department.

"Certainly the facts already proved about (Alger) Hiss and (Henry Julian) Wadleigh in the State Department justify our support of an investigation unhampered by executive obstinacy and name-calling."

The President, Taft said, is using bipartisan foreign policy as a "slogan to condemn any Republican who disagrees with his unilateral foreign policy."

Taft said the President's attack on Republicans in the Senate does not make sense.

"His assumption of (Owen) Lattimore's innocence parallels his support of Alger Hiss, when the un-American Activities Committee of the Republican House first brought out the facts, which finally proved that vital State Department documents were being supplied to Communist agents by high State Department officials."

Asserting that the President had "slandered" Senator McCarthy, Taft went on:

"The greatest Kremlin asset in our history has been the pro-Communist group in the State Department who surrendered to every demand of Russia at Yalta and Potsdam, and promoted at every opportunity the Communist cause in China until today Communism threatens to take over all of Asia.

"How can the Kremlin profit by criticism of those who were responsible for these policies and by their removal from the State Department," he asked.

'Miss Cavewoman'

Girl Men 'Fear' Wins Dread Title

MISS LYDIA NEUBUCK
"The Cave Woman of 1950"

Lusty, curvesome, 24-year-old Lydia Neubuck of Pottsville, N. Y., yesterday was elected Miss Cavewoman of 1950.

Lydia, a cave woman since aged 4, was chosen at the seventh annual concave of the National Speleological Society at the Dodge Hotel.

The action came not long after Lydia had hit town like four Oklahoma cyclones, searching for a cave man.

So far the search has been unsuccessful because:

"Men are afraid of me."

She left strong men gasping like spaniel puppies as she legged through the Dodge lobby in sweater and slacks.

Lydia was one of 150 cave men and women in town for the society's three-day convention.

Speleology is the study of caves, speleologists are cave scientists who discover valuable scientific data about United States caves, several erudite scientists were in attendance at the Dodge.

But enough of that.

She needs a cave man, said Lydia, because the speleological society, of which she's a life member and former member of the board of governors, has a rule you don't go in a cave alone.

Also, said she, it would be nice to have a man around on her 300-acre farm at Pottsville.

There she lives in a cabin and has a big cave of her own—making her, she says, the youngest cave owner. She has been exploring this and other caves all over the country since she was 4.

When she finds her cave man she wants to marry him right on top of that Pottsville cave.

Lattimore Role Minimized

Dr. Everett Case, president of Colgate University; Dr. Raymond D. Fosdick, former president of Rockefeller Foundation, and Dr. Philip Jessup, the State Department's ambassador at large.

McCarthy has charged that Jessup has pro-Communist leanings and is a "stooge" of Lattimore's. Jessup, however, has denied the Senator's accusations.

Asked whether Lattimore's views on the China situation would be made public, McDermott said no, because they were "solicited in confidence."

"We wanted them to be frank," McDermott added.

McCarthy has repeatedly painted a quite different picture, asserting that Lattimore was a trusted counselor of the department, a long-time and frequent adviser and that he had a desk there up until a "few weeks" ago.

Lattimore himself, returning from a mission in Afghanistan, was delayed yesterday by bad flying weather over the Atlantic. He is scheduled to arrive in New York early today. He has called McCarthy's accusations "moonshine," "hogwash" and "an unmitigated lie."

According to the record, Acheson told newsmen yesterday, Lattimore had only the following connections with the State Department:

He was appointed an economic adviser to the United States reparations mission to Japan and served until February 12, 1946. He was paid out of a State Department fund for international conferences but was not responsible to the State Department. (This mission operated under the direction of the White House and was headed by Edwin Pauley, California oil man.)

Lattimore delivered a lecture June 5, 1946, to the Foreign Service Institute on a program for people entering the diplomatic service called "Meet the Public." Lattimore was not paid for his appearance and was not employed by the State Department. There were 28 other persons on the program.

On October 6, 7, and 8, 1948, Lattimore and 27 other persons took part in a round-table discussion of United States foreign policy in China, held at the State Department. Acheson said the State Department, which defrayed Lattimore's expenses on this occasion but that he was not an employe of the department.

The Secretary of State said there is no truth to reports that Lattimore's Afghanistan mission was carried out for the State Department. That was United Nations business, he said.

Library of Congress Quoted

Considerable interest attaches to this last point in view of remarks that McCarthy made on the Senate floor Thursday.

McCarthy said:

"At the present time Lattimore is in Afghanistan. While the State Department denies he has any connection with it, the following information was obtained from the Library of Congress:

"The Afghanistan government asked the United States in December, 1949, to send a preliminary mission to Afghanistan to investigate the possibility of economic development under United Nations technical assistance program. Owen Lattimore was selected to be head of this mission . . .'"

The Library of Congress, as quoted by McCarthy, said the mission also included an Englishman from U. N. Secretariat, a Canadian from another U. N. organization, and a fourth unidentified member.

That report, therefore, strongly suggests that what was being described was a United Nations', not a United States' mission.

Library Refuses Information

It further suggests careless work by the Library of Congress, by Senator McCarthy's staff, or misinformation of some sort, in that the seventh word in the Library's report that McCarthy quoted almost certainly should have read "Nations," and not "States."

On inquiry, the Library refused to say what text it had given to McCarthy, this being against long-observed policy.

But further inquiry revealed that when the Library sought to answer the query it had received from McCarthy, it called on the State Department for the information. And the State Department told the Library, in reply, that the mission was of the "United Nations."

McCarthy made much of the point in his speech that the Afghanistan government "asked this Government" and asked the "United States" to send the mission, and that the State Department said, "We will send Owen Lattimore."

Papers May Be Subpenaed

In an interview yesterday at Providence, R. I., Senator Green (D., R. I.), acting chairman of the Senate subcommittee investigating McCarthy's charges, indicated the subcommittee might issue a subpena for McCarthy's papers.

McCarthy had said he would give the documents and names he claims will prove Lattimore a spy to the FBI, but not to the Senate subcommittee.

Green said he would confer with other members of the subcommittee about issuing a subpena when he returns to Washington today.

Meantime, McCarthy and two other Republicans, whom Mr. Truman denounced on Thursday as aiding the Kremlin by their attacks on the State Department, struck back yesterday.

thing he is trying to do is "to sabotage some of the subversives and security risks so that they will be thrown out of key posts in the Government."

Wherry, the GOP floor leader who has criticized Acheson, challenged the President to open the FBI and other loyalty files to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating McCarthy's charges that Communists have influenced foreign policies.

Former Policeman Shot in Ambush

A former Hyattsville policeman was mysteriously shot twice by a "local man" early yesterday in an ambush between two Prince Georges County taverns.

The wounded man is Thomas R. Bladen, 32, of 6524 Marlboro pike. He was released from Prince Georges General Hospital yesterday after treatment for a flesh wound in the left shoulder and a bullet burn on the arm.

Bladen has refused to name his assailant, other than to tell investigating detectives that he is "a local man," between 30 and 35 years old. He dismissed the whole incident as a "family affair," although he has refused to elaborate on this statement.

According to Prince Georges police, the shooting occurred at about 12:15 a. m. Friday. Bladen had been in the Dixie Pig Tavern in Bladensburg, he told police. He left the tavern and went out on a street between that tavern and the Crossroads Restaurant.

Police surmised his assailant may have been "out looking for" Bladen. At least two shots were fired, one striking Bladen in the shoulder, the other passing through his coat sleeve. Police said there were no powder burns on Bladen's clothing. They say Bladen told him the shots were fired from a revolver. From the size of the bullet holes, they said the gun was probably of .32 caliber.

County authorities did not enter the picture until after 1:30 a. m., when hospital authorities notified them they were treating a man for a bullet wound.

Police said Bladen told them that he was alone at the time of the shooting. Mrs. Bladen, who lives at 4801 48th ave., Edmonston, has been estranged from her husband for several months. She told police she knew nothing about the circumstances surrounding the shooting.

Bladen, a Riverdale plumber before he entered police work, was injured late last December when he said he was assaulted by a motorist he attempted to arrest for a traffic violation. Bladen was off duty and out of uniform at the time. The motorist later told authorities he did not know Bladen was a policeman.

Early in January, Bladen was suspended because of the incident and because he failed to report for duty the following day.

At month's end, he was dismissed from the force by Chief Howard H. Holmes for "failure to report for duty." Holmes said Bladen reported sick for two succeeding days when he was capable of reporting for duty.

$3500 SAVED—Tyrus E. Samuels, office manager of N. W. Martin & Bros., Inc., heating contractors, 1429 North Quincy st., Arlington, Va., displays pay envelopes totaling about $3500 which bandits overlooked as they fled with $3887. Samuels was making up the weekly payroll with his secretary, Mrs. Margaret Stailey about 24 years old; slim and sallow faced; both wearing work clothing including gray or tan zippered jackets and cloth hats. One was about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, and the other about two inches taller. Except for the hats, they answered the description of the men in the sheet metal union robbery Thursday.

Two Who Robbed Banneker Pupil Draw Jail Terms

Two men who participated in one of a group of terror-robberies of students at the Banneker School yesterday were given substantial prison terms by Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts in District Court.

They are John H. Glover, 18, of 745 Park rd. nw., who drew eight months to two years and Everett A. Wallace, 29, no known address, who received 16 months to two years.

They had been found guilty of taking a $20 wrist watch from Roger W. Powell, 15, of 3609 New Hampshire ave. nw., after threatening to beat him.

The incident occurred last January when school officials protested to police that a wave of hoodlumism was going on in the grounds of several schools here.

were Thomas L. Robbins, 1541 N. Longfellow st., Arlington, heating superintendent; Tyrus E. Samuels, 1610 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, office manager; Miss Margaret Stailey, 3818 N. Fairfax dr., Arlington, secretary to the superintendent; and William Toney, 4846 N. 9th st., Arlington, an engineer.

Outside door to the office, which opens off an alley, was locked, according to Samuels and Robbins. They said that the two men knocked persistently until Samuels finally opened it.

The pair then inquired of Samuels about employment, the same technique used in the union office robbery in Washington a day before. When he told them there were no jobs, one of the men covered him with two pistols, he said, and the other one pistol.

Miss Stailey was working on the payroll money at the time, Samuels and Robbins said. As Samuels was backed into the office, one of the bandits barked, "This is a stickup," and commanded all four to back against a windowed wall.

The thugs first told the victims to raise their hands, but then, apparently in fear they would be seen from outside, ordered them lowered. One bandit produced a paper grocery bag from inside his jacket, the victims said, and forced Toney to put the money into it until the robbers told him "that's enough."

During the course of the robbery, one bandit told the four:

"Let's don't have any heroes now."

Samuels and Robbins said both robbers appeared very nervous, but also very familiar with the office and its procedure.

After the loot was snatched, all four victims were ordered to lie on the floor. The men left, the waiting car pulled to the door, and then roared through the L-shaped alley.

Robbins went outside and called to Harold Brame, 1200 N. Kenilworth st., Arlington, and Frederick Gunnell, 1401 57th ave., Hillside, Md., company employes, who were working in a yard nearby, to take an auto with him and pursue the bandit car.

Brame and Gunnell told police that the three men in the bandit car drove through the alley about 45 minutes before the holdup, in the opposite direction from the one they finally took. At the time, the two employes said, the three men in the car waved to them familiarly and they waved back, but did not recognize the trio.

The two men were described as

Farmer Uses Borrowed Gun To Seize Road Gang Fugitive

An escape from a Fairfax (Va.) road gang was recaptured Thursday by an alert farmer who recognized the fugitive's prison garb and then used a borrowed pistol to detain him, it was learned yesterday.

Sergt. M. C. Russell, supervisor of Prison Camp 30, credited A. J. Hummer, of Sterling, Va., with the capture of Henry F. Sigmon, 21, on a highway near Sterling a few hours after the convict had "walked away" from a road gang on Route 602 near Fairfax.

Hummer, Sergt. Russell said, recognized Sigmon as a convict after giving him a ride near his farm. Without arousing the fugitive's suspicion, Hummer let his passener off at a small store and gave him a quarter to "help him along," Russell related.

Hummer then went into the store, borrowed a pistol from the proprietor and took after his quarry. Confronted with the pistol, Sigmon offered no resistance and was taken by Hummer to Leesburg, Va., where he was turned over to State police.

Sergeant Russell said Sigmon, serving a two-year sentence for storebreaking, had only five more months to serve when he walked away from a highway project on which he was working as a prison trusty.

Fugitive From Fairfax Road Gang Captured

Bel Air, Md., March 31 (AP).—Don Battaglerr, 21, who escaped from a Fairfax (Va.) prison gang March 24, was flushed from a honeysuckle patch near here last night.

Battaglerr was captured by armed searchers after he was reported to have broken into the home of Mrs. Irene Turner, at Emmerton, and terrified her mother and three children on Wednesday.

Police at Emmerton were unable to find Battaglerr after the incident was reported, but the search here was touched off when a farmer spotted the fugitive in a field.

Battaglerr had been at the Virginia camp since October 13. The youth was serving a five-year sentence for burglary. He is from Coffeyville, Kans.

In order to bring you and our thousands of other meat customers the finest the market affords, our buyers are instructed to pay whatever price is necessary to qualify as "GIANT Top Notch" quality.

FOR GRADE MEAT

Don't be under the impression that, in any one grade or classification of beef, quality is equal. U. S. Dept. of Agriculture wholesale quotations on western dressed meats show daily that each grade has a wholesale price range up to 4c a pound. The result? Whatever you pay more for the same grade, or less for the same grade, there must be a difference in the quality.

"TRIM-RITE" is the method by which Giant's skilled meat cutters prepare the meats. It eliminates much of the inedible portions, and it assures you maximum meat value!

Straw Poll, Straw Men

There are several easier methods by which the District Commissioners could conduct their survey on daylight-saving time than by requiring busy policemen to designate representative citizens to distribute ballots. For example, if they wanted a scattering of opinion, they could dump the ballots by airplane; all those which became impaled on the Washington Monument could be considered approvals. Or they could question sleeping-car porters on the views of traveling men in Pullman washrooms. Or they could devise a bovine questionnaire for the purebred cows in Minnesota. Any of these methods would have virtually as much scientific validity as the grab-bag affair the Commissioners have settled upon.

For that matter, have the Commissioners made sure that some of the ballot distributors are not fanatics in the matter who will contact only their friends? Are there any precautions against ballot-stacking? In short, what is the reason for all this nonsense? Daylight saving has worked perfectly well in Washington for three seasons, and several genuinely scientific samplings of opinion have showed substantial majorities in favor of it. What now has thrown the question in doubt? Could it be that the new "straw vote" in a voteless city is just an easy way for the Commissioners to avoid meeting the issue squarely?

Fresh Appointments

Right men are put in right places in the batch of new appointments announced at Key West. Evidently the Administration is anxious to squeeze the last drop of good service out of the retiring Secretary of the Army, Gordon Gray. Few men have won more esteem in recent years in the Capital than the North Carolinian. In the fall he will take over the presidency of the University of North Carolina, but in the meantime he will be at the President's elbow, as special assistant charged with coordinating Government policy on foreign economic relations. Frank Pace, jr., now director of the budget, will take Mr. Gray's place at the Pentagon, and Mr. Gray's shoes must have been in the President's mind when he made the transfer, for the two men are affinitous. Mr. Pace has done uncommonly well at the Bureau of the Budget. Not only has he proved exceedingly efficient at his job; he has introduced many innovations, all of them aimed at making the budget familiar and understandable to the American people. Mr. Pace's career deserves watching.

Doubtless the new assignment for Mr. Gray will look mysterious to a lot of people. Actually, as we said exactly a month ago, there was a hole in the otherwise excellent structure of cold-war government, and it is this hole that Mr. Gray is filling. The hole was the absence of a liaison between our foreign economic policy and our military strategy. Another explanation of the assignment is that the time has arrived for a concerted attack on the problems concerned with America's world creditorship. Dollars must be put at the world's disposal either by more buying of foreign goods or of more investment abroad, or both. Coupled with the President's hint of a Republican Ambassador-at-large with Mr. Jessup, the Gray appointment seems to foreshadow significant policy-making on the pro front.

Old Stone House

This is such a young country that any house as much as a century old has historic prestige. Even Washington, which many brash sightseers regard as an ancient city, has few remaining pre-Revolutionary buildings. That is one reason why the "Old Stone House" at 3051 M st. nw., has such a strong hold on the affections of those familiar with it. Bills have now been introduced in House and Senate to have the Secretary of the Interior acquire this landmark as part of the National Capital Parks system. It would then be preserved as an example of eighteenth century architecture and as a museum for relics and records pertaining to the early history of Georgetown and the City of Washington.

Built in 1764 by Christopher Lehman (or Layman), this quaint story and a half dwelling dates back to the days when Georgetown was a busy seaport and when Bridge (now M) st. was a bustling commercial thoroughfare. Many legends have grown up about it—that it was the headquarters for Pierre L'Enfant, as well as for Washington, while the Federal city was being planned, also the headquarters for the Commissioners who developed L'Enfant's plans, that it was the model for Washington's town house in Alexandria, that it was General Braddock's headquarters. Historians discredit this last legend, argue about some of the others. But there is widespread belief that the Old Stone House was the structural birthplace of our great Federal city, that within its low-ceilinged rooms with their narrow sash windows the blueprint midwifery took place that produced what Tom Moore in 1804 called

> This embryo Capital where fancy sees
> Squares in morasses, obelisks in trees.

If this belief be true, then not only the Capital but the entire Nation has a vested sentiment in the "Old Stone House" that transcends even its architectural significance.

Investigation

When Mr. Stimson wrote that the McCarthy way protects the guilty as well as smears and damages the innocent, he wrote truly. What this newspaper has been concerned about since investigation by persecution started a couple of years ago is the degradation of the investigative process of Congress. Here is a vital component of the congressional power. A year ago we gave an outline of a code of fair practice, but Congress merely toyed with the idea, and reform is still languishing, in spite of the fresh demonstration that the way that investigation is being perverted is imperiling the standing of Congress. This is even more serious than the rapid impairment of the integrity of the investigation system as the safeguard of good government.

A fundamental principle to keep constantly in mind is that power tends to corrupt, and absolute power tends to corrupt absolutely. During a free-spending war in which huge grants of power are asked and given with the loosest supervision, abuses are bound to thrive. In wartime the Truman Committee kept a watchful eye over the complicated operations of wartime government, but it could not see that everything in the war administration remained pure and aboveboard. And the bad habits that develop in wartime are seldom shed during the cleaning-up process; indeed, are intensified by the gravy of liquidation. However, the citizenry always takes comfort in the feeling that there is a Nemesis in the power of investigation when the shooting is over and men and things are cut down to size.

After the First World War almost all the allies had their accounting. In Britain the Foreign Office went through a house cleaning in a scandal involving transactions by officials and their friends in foreign currency. There were inquiries in France. In these cases there was no hullabaloo, no name-calling, but a smooth and efficient ferreting out of corruption and abuses by process of departmental committees. In America several congressional inquiries got under way into frauds connected with wartime contracts, and, though these inquiries had a political coloration, they did useful service. Much the same cleanup was in prospect after the Second World War, and retribution in several instances has, indeed, been exacted. Lately, however, investigation has gone off at a tangent, and the solitary aim seems to be to gather party capital, rather than to punish those who abused the public trust in time of national emergency.

In postwar years the gossip of the Capital has been intermittently concerned with rumors of the way this person or that "got away with it." Certainly there were ample opportunities of graft and shady dealing in surplus property and black markets and currency manipulation. One or two cases have come to light and been disposed of by departmental discipline, with others, such as the Bissell case, pending. How effectively even these jobs have been done is a matter of guesswork. We ourselves prefer to rely upon objective congressional procedures, but, alas, it is these procedures that are fast becoming repugnant to all fair-minded citizens. While the innocent are injured, the guilty are doubtless smiling and smirking behind all the sound and fury.

Irish Partition

Although the Fogarty amendment was irrelevant to the purposes of the Marshall Plan, and was therefore dropped yesterday, a very strong case can be made for the restoration of the six counties to the rest of Ireland. The Ulster problem has been one of the perpetual sores of European politics. It is now well recognized by historians that the Unionist revolt of 1914 under Sir Edward Carson was one of the factors that encouraged the Central Powers in the course of conduct that precipitated the Great War of 1914-18. The partition enforced by the treaty of 1922 afforded no solution. It was the pretext which led to the civil war against Free State government, and it was ultimately responsible for the secession of Ireland from the British Commonwealth.

At bottom the problem is not religious but economic. The six counties of Ulster represent the richest and most prosperous portion of Ireland. What the landowners and industrialists who control its government and its policies dread is not persecution by a Catholic majority, but rather taxation for the benefit of the still somewhat poverty-stricken south and west. But it is also true that the Northern Irish government is thoroughly resented by the strong Ulster Catholic minority, which in two of the six counties is actually a majority.

The prospects of unification seem brighter now than at any time since 1922. In the midst of their other difficulties the British must be thoroughly sick of the problem and eager to end it. The Irish themselves are in a better position to apply pressures. In the recent general elections two Nationalist members were returned to the British Parliament from Northern Ireland. They probably will not take their seats, but should they choose to do so, they might find themselves, in the present almost equal situation between Labor and the Tories, able to swing a sort of balance of power, as was done by the Irish Party in the days of O'Connell and Parnell.

A Chairman At Last

After more than 13 months, President Truman has found a man to fill the vacant chairmanship of the National Security Resources Board. The new appointee, Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington, will be looked upon to rescue the NSRB from its long period of aimless drift—drift at a time when this coordinating agency should have been pushing manpower mobilization and civil defense plans. Mr. Symington has been one of the most vigorous executives of the Truman Administration, and if we have frequently disagreed with him we have never doubted his determination or capacity for decision. Whatever else may be said of the Air Force, it knows where it's going.

A similar sense of mission is the prime need of the Security Resources Board. This top-level agency has the job of arbiter between potential military and civilian demands on human and physical resources. Its responsibilities include the formulation of an up-to-date mobilization plan readily translatable into component details, and the coordination of mobilization activities in the various Federal departments. It also, since last year, has been in charge of civil defense planning. But with only a part-time director in the person of Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, the NSRB staff has been marking time and seemingly has been more concerned with internal administration than with positive accomplishments.

The need now is to get down to practical details—to provide guidance to the Munitions Board and other agencies on mobilization responsibilities, and to see that States and cities receive concrete help in training civilian defense cadres. The job is not one for scaremongering, but for steady, unflamboyant staff work. Mr. Symington has had plenty of experience, both as an industrialist and businessman as well as in Government. If he will use his abundant energies to restore direction to the NSRB, he will help meet an important national deficiency.

Leon Blum

The great figures of the Third Republic combined the profession of letters with that of politics, and Leon Blum, dead at 77, was one of the most glittering stars of the constellation. A boulevardier in his youth, with an ample private income at his disposal, he wrote poetry, dramatic criticism, essays, and books, and seems at the same time to have held down a job as a civil servant. Withal, he flitted from salon to salon clad wholly in black, from his broad-brimmed hat and loose string tie, and contributed to the bohemian circles of Paris a conversation that is said to have sparkled with wit and to have been couched in a language as pure as any in France.

It seems to have been the Dreyfus case at the end of the nineteenth century that thrust Blum into public affairs. He felt the case as a humanitarian even more than as a Jew, and his polemics rate high in the literature of that celebrated episode. Having taken the plunge, he found his place in public life by the side of Jean Jaures, the father of the Socialist Party, and he led that party through the split with communism, then into collaboration in two prewar Popular Front cabinets. He put through social reforms, but at the expense of total neglect of France's defense; yet Blum redeemed his reputation while he was a prisoner in Germany and by his brilliant conduct of his defense at the Riom trials.

Blum was a man of thought more than a man of action, and his spiritual home, as Lania says in his Nine Lives of Europe, would have been in a 2½ International, or one between the Second and Third Internationals. This effort to reconcile the irreconcilable reappeared in his postwar advocacy of a Third Force. By that time the world issue had become not one between capitalism and communism, but between freedom and slavery, and there is no middle ground between these two. Yet the cause to which Blum of recent times gave his powerful talents was clear cut and authentic; he was one of the stalwarts of the European movement. In this respect he had little kinship with the nationalism of more doctrinaire Socialists in Britain, but, then, there was nothing provincial or narrow-minded in Leon Blum. He had a cosmopolitan culture, a fealty to the European system, and a fierce loyalty to moral values which made him a great humanist.

Push The Crime Probe

Now that the Senate Rules Committee has given the green light to the investigation of interstate crime by the Judiciary Committee, responsibility for pushing it devolves particularly on Majority Leader Lucas. This investigation, covering the activities of crime syndicates, their influence upon local authorities and the adequacy of Federal laws, is a necessary prelude to any new crime legislation. Prompt action on the Kefauver resolution is essential because the Rules Committee has added a stipulation that the investigators must report to the Senate by July 31. Certainly all good citizens have an interest in the strengthening of law enforcement which may come about through exposure of the activities of the "tygoons" across State lines. We urge Senator Lucas to give the Senate a chance to vote on the Kefauver resolution.

Irish Vote

The people of Northern Ireland chose to stand with the United States and Britain, shoulder to shoulder, through every terrific trial of the greatest onslaught against free men the world has yet seen. After the slap in the face they received Wednesday from a capricious House of Representatives, could not this same body pay some tribute to these brave Irishmen who have no desire to be united with the south, so expressed by free ballot.

Could they not also include in this tribute all the loved American fathers, sons and sweethearts who went to watery graves because vital Atlantic ports belonging to South Ireland were denied the Allies in the long, deadly struggle against the Nazi submarines? In the meantime Congressmen might also well recall that while Allied ships were going down almost by the hour, the same hated Nazis, together with the Japanese, were afforded a welcome, undisturbed listening post and spy center in the free world, through their embassies in Dublin.

Miss Bailey's Fight

Miss Dorothy Bailey has appealed to the Supreme Court the decision that the President "may remove from Government service any person of whose loyalty he is not completely convinced. He may do so without assigning any reason and without giving the employe any explanatory notice." (Miss Bailey was dismissed in this manner for alleged disloyalty and was refused information as to the charges against her and the names of her accusers.)

Should the Supreme Court uphold the decision of the lower court, the President would then be in a position to dominate the entire army of Government servants.

Moreover, any person having a grudge against a Government employe or being covetous of his position could secretly charge him with disloyalty and cause his dismissal without his having a chance to be heard in his own defense or know who accused him. These are Gestapo measures. What would prevent Communists or any other enemy aliens from infiltrating Government for the express purpose of discrediting and accusing loyal Government employes and causing their dismissal?

In the interest of real Government security, there seems to be need for a law that would permit the employment in any Government agency of any person not born in the United States. As for Miss Bailey, in fighting against her own wrongs, she is fighting the cause of every loyal American citizen for, under our law, a person is innocent until proven guilty.

Crusade For Freedom

A national town meeting should be held in Washington April 19 for representatives of our free institutions and organizations and Government leaders. Such a nonpartisan meeting called by the President or the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee would be like a shot fired around the world—a battle cry of freedom as historic as that of the Minutemen on April 19, 1775.

Nothing is so impressive to other nations as the resources of our free institutions, free organizations and our free press. All have resources and programs striving to reach our 150 million free peoples. No great rallying of these forces for a crusade for freedom on the home front has been attempted in order to face facts, focus efforts and tap resources to face today's challenges that we may be strong and free enough to meet tomorrow's.

Our people rallied on the home front in the war effort to speed victory. Every man, woman and child felt there was something he could do. This type of participation is needed today to win the cold war. Let us tackle this task together with all our free forces mobilized. Let us face facts together, and determine ways and means to go forward without fear.

Such a national town meeting, if widely publicized, would be a major offensive victory in the cold war. Fredom of assembly and freedom of speech die a bitter death under dictatorship. We have these resources and the initiative of a free people. Let us call forth this strength, not weaken and diffuse it. Let us prepare our own house before we seek to hold meetings in Russia. Let us demonstrate that we are ready to meet present challenges.

Flower Judgments

The judgment as passed on individual flower arrangements at the Flower Show at the National Guard Armory was creditable, but it is the consensus of correct table-setting experts that many of the judges' decisions on combined table-setting and arrangements were poor. Just as an example, in the garden club tea, the second prize was awarded to a table which had an unpolished tray under its tea urn. On the opposite end of the table was a small tray and six plates and napkins. Who ever heard of using dinner plates and napkins on a tea table?

The congressional dinner table display was supposed to be formal. On some tables the napkins lay on the plate, on others they were at left of the plate; some were well-ironed, others were not and in many instances they were turned upside down.

The bridal shower table rule asked that pastel colors be stressed. The table that won second prize in that class was all yellow. Forsythia and daffodils were used in a yellow-painted outdoor water can. Why should the judges not conform to the rules set down for the exhibitors?

If flower arrangement judges are to pass judgment on combined flower arrangement and table setting, they should have to study and pass examination on correct table setting as well as flower arrangements.

McCarthy's Charges

One of the things we hate about communism is the idea that only one political grouping is loyal to the Nation and that opposition to that party constitutes treason.

Yet isn't this same attitude common among members of the conservative coalition—from the demogogic McCarthy to the respectable Dulles—who are trying to put over the idea that any opponent of conservative economics is automatically some sort of precursor to communism? If the conservative coalition has nothing more than that to offer the people, then it is admitting that its program is to serve only the "fat cats."

WILFRID G. ROULEAU.
Washington.

I have had considerable experience in Government and have been alarmed by the excessive number of people employed by Government who have Communist leanings. While serving on committees dealing with financial, labor and economic problems, I have often heard talk and expressions denouncing our constitutional form of government, advocating a change by any means whatsoever and at the same time lauding all that Russia represents and does.

Certainly Senator McCarthy should be heard. Furthermore it should be recognized that he is not an FBI and like all congressional investigators can only present his allegations with enough evidence to indicate the need for more thorough investigation by the loyalty boards, the FBI and chiefs of bureaus and departments.

GOVERNMENT WORKER.
Washington.

Anyone familiar with Owen Lattimore's work could figure out that he is a liberal thinker, and not a Communist, nor a Communist sympathizer.

I would suggest that we might have this excerpt from Gulliver's Travels read aloud at the close of these hearings:

"There are some laws and customs in this empire very peculiar; and, if they were not so directly contrary to those of my own dear country, I should be tempted to say a little in their justification. It is only to be wished they were as well executed. The first I shall mention related to informers. All crimes against the state are punished here with the utmost severity; but, if the person accused maketh his innocence plainly to appear upon his trial, the accuser is immediately put to an ignominious death; and, out of his goods or lands, the innocent person is quadruply recompensed for the loss of his time, for the danger he underwent, for the hardship of his imprisonment, and for all the charges he hath been at in making his defense. Or, if that fund be deficient, it is largely supplied by the crown. The Emperor does also confer on him some public mark of his favor, and proclamation is made of his innocence through the whole city."

BERTHA GRADY McGOVERN.
Washington.

Future historians will be referring to Joseph McCarthy as the assassin Senator from Wisconsin. They will also refer to him as the man who brought about his own eclipse from public life.

C. B. R.
Washington.

When charges like Senator McCarthy's are made, why doesn't the congressional committee call on Mr. Hoover of the FBI for a report instead of indiscriminately demanding papers it knows it isn't entitled to? The President could authorize Mr. Hoover to examine all three files—State, loyalty and FBI—and then report his findings to the committee on the truth or falsity of the charges.

Why have we heard so little about the State Department employe who gave the Senator confidential information from the department's files? Early in the investigation, when Senator Tydings pressed him for his sources, Senator McCarthy said the employe wouldn't last a minute in his job if he divulged his sources. Will the Senator now seek the employes' dismissal for giving him a set of bum steers? S. L.

Easy Way Patriotism

By Malvina Lindsay

Feinting at Moscow

"THIS MEETING has been called," announced the speaker surveying the packed hall," to recruit a local force of vigilantes to combat communism——"

"Mr. Chairman!" Scores were clamoring for recognition.

"I've taken a correspondence course in sleuthing!" shouted an elderly man. "I'd be glad to head an investigating squad."

"I'll organize a flag drill!" called out a woman in a flower hat.

"I'll head a speakers' bureau—put a ripsnorter on every soapbox!" boomed a candidate for Congress.

"I'll install dictaphones in every telephone booth," volunteered a mechanic.

"Just a minute!" protested the chairman. "We need other recruits first. Now this is our line of attack. We all know the Kremlin's No. 1 weapon is its expectation of a collapse of capitalism. It's waiting on a major depression in the United States—and consequently the free world. Our No. 1 job is to see this doesn't happen——"

"Wait!" broke in a man with an authoritative voice. "You're going to get mixed up there with the law of supply and demand."

"We're calling," the chairman continued, "for vigilantes for economic defense units. These will study the economy local and national—seek ways of halting this growing unemployment, of averting and settling strikes, of maintaining the high American standard of living that is one of our main defenses against communism. Men and women! We must mobilize our brains to preserve our economic home front! Who will enlist."

HEAVY SILENCE suffused the hall. Finally a dowager arose. "I'd be glad," she said, "to censor textbooks."

Scores sprang to their feet. The chairman finally waved them down. "We also need vigilantes," he shouted, "to combat the Kremlin's divide-and-conquer warfare. We must halt the forces that are stirring up this dissension among us, fomenting this bitterness, name calling, accusation, in politics, religion, industry, between races and classes. Let us organize strength through union squads in every community, try to get our leaders together on the evils that threaten beyond the water's edge——"

"Treason!" roared the candidate for Congress. "Don't you know an election's coming up?"

"I'm calling," went on the speaker," for minute men and women who will give their minds and hearts to getting the warring elements in their communities to settle their petty, self-seeking quarrels."

"Mr. Chairman!" shouted a man in the audience," you're going at this the wrong way. People don't want to be for anything. They want to be mad at something."

"That's just the point!" retorted the chairman. "We must get together to be against Soviet imperialism."

"That's too far away! We've got to dig up some subversive rascals in our back yards."

A dozen persons were speaking. "I know a guy in my office we ought to go after!" . . . "I'd like to do some undercover work in my neighborhood" . . . "My little boy's schoolteacher has some strange notions."

"FRIENDS," cried the chairman above the tumult, "there's urgent need to help our allies in the free world remain free. We can't be left alone in this cold war. The Kremlin is waiting, like a cat for a mouse, for the ending of American aid programs abroad. We need vigilantes to investigate how we can increase our imports, help international trade, develop backward areas through Point IV, keep free nations in Europe and Asia on their feet. Do I hear a volunteer?"

The silence was deep. "I should be glad," finally chirped a woman, "to head a committee to investigate Hollywood."

"We should investigate all women's organizations," proclaimed a broad-girthed man, "They're putting out a lot of pink propaganda." A chorus reverberated. "We should investigate Paris skirt lengths" . . . "We should investigate flying saucers" . . . "We should investigate the British" . . . "We should investigate everybody!"

The chairman made another try. "Friends," he pleaded, "let us at least form a vigilantes group to further the practice of the Americanism we preach, to protect our freedom of movement, of enterprise, of religion, of speech, of thought, of association—"

As he spoke he saw the audience stampede toward the door. From the sidewalk in front drifted the stentorian voice of the candidate for Congress. "I charge," he was shouting "that my opponent on May 13, 1923, appeared in a leading role in a high school presentation of an operetta — an operetta, my friends called The Red Mill.

Treating Perversion

One great reason why sexual perversion is so difficult a problem is because a person confronted with it hides his affliction with an agonizing fear of being found out. Rather than seek help he suppresses his feelings until the whole problem becomes distorted in his mind.

Would it not be wiser then to offer psychiatric help and guidance without the threat of loss of security to these people. I'm quite sure that Senator Hill or any other public servant's objectives are to encourage understanding rather than advocate false prejudices. This malady could occur in any family.

Air National Guard

By Marquis Childs

Waste Of Defense Funds

WITH THE changes President Truman is initiating in the Defense Establishment it should be possible to take a second look at defense spending to see whether the public is getting a dollar's worth of defense for each dollar spent. That is, it will be possible if Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson gives the new men in his department even a little independence.

Childs

As General Eisenhower made abundantly clear in his testimony, there is no room for waste. And the suspicion is growing that boondoggles are not merely tolerated in the Defense Establishment but perhaps even encouraged.

A conspicuous example that should be looked into at once is the Air National Guard. It is costing this year $114,690,000 and the amount asked in the 1951 budget is $103,935,000. Not Air Force officers alone but high-ranking officers in the other two services with expert knowledge on military spending believe most of this is being wasted insofar as any contribution to national security is concerned.

It happens that the Air National Guard is a very hot political potato. Almost no one will talk about it. But here are some of the facts.

THE VERY able retiring Secretary of the Army, Gordon Gray, was named head of a board to study the role of the Air Guard. After long and painstaking study the board issued in June, 1948, a report recommending in effect that the Air National Guard be placed under Federal control with Air Force standards applied.

The retiring Secretary of the Air Force, W. Stuart Symington, approved the Gray board findings in his 1948 report. One of the ablest men in the Air Force, Lieut. Gen. Elwood Quesada, was assigned to the Air National Guard with instructions to see that standards were observed.

But powerful political pressure began to build up to prevent the Gray board recommendation from being carried through. This had its origin in part in the National Guard Association, which jealously resents any suggestion of federalization whether by the Army or the Air Force.

Another source of opposition lay in the privileges and prerogatives enjoyed by Governors of the States and others who have access to National Guard planes. When the issue was put up to Johnson shortly after he took over as Secretary of Defense, his first remark was: "But that will mean taking the planes away from the Governors."

In many States the Governor uses a National Guard plane as his private plane. Although this is contrary to regulation, many of these planes have been altered for the comfort of the Governor and his family. This has its hazards, too, since to shift the weight of a DC-3 requires considerable technical knowledge and skill. These planes are all carried on the records as supply carriers.

AT THE annual conference of Governors held last June in Colorado Springs, more than 30 Governors arrived in Air National Guard planes. In many instances they brought with them their wives and children and the wives' friends and the children's friends. All these names were recorded on forms sent to Washington. Since it was contrary to regulations, the forms were carefully ignored.

There will be those to say, "Well, doesn't President Truman fly around in his private plane? And Louis Johnson? Why shouldn't the Governor of a State?" The answer may be, Yes, of course. But the money spent in this way contributes nothing to national defense.

This may seem comparatively minor. More serious is the question of whether proper standards are enforced in the training of Air National Guard pilots. I believe that an honest investigation would show widespread disregard of the training regulations that are strictly enforced in the Air Force itself.

In the Air Force if any pilot falsifies a training record, he is at once brought before a court-martial. All indications are that there is nothing like this scrupulousness in the Air National Guard.

On February 23, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Harold C. Stuart in a talk before the Adjutant Generals' Association extended what the Air Force Times called "An Olive Tree" to the National Guard. His talk was taken as equivalent to saying that Washington would in the future give the States a completely free rein. Maj. Gen. Ellard Walsh of Minnesota, president of the National Guard Association, chief foe of any degree of federalization, in effect accepted the Stuart speech as a friendly flag of surrender.

That this waste exists will be vehemently denied by proponents of the State National Guard concept. But an objective investigation will, I am convinced, show that money is being misused which is urgently needed for national security.

GOP Officials Of 19 States Plan Battle

Salt Lake City, March 31 (U.P.).—Republican National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson told his party tonight to get down on the precinct level and work to stop a "pump-priming" Democratic Administration.

"Party machinery must be representative of the people and in close touch with it," he said in addressing a gathering of State chairmen and vice chairmen from 19 Midwestern and Rocky Mountain States.

These States this year will elect 152 Representatives and 14 Senators from a predominantly rural area.

"There is no room for autocratic cliques, bitter personal feuds . . . throat-cutting and tearing-down," Gabrielson declared.

He asserted that the Administration has sabotaged the bipartisan foreign policy—inaugurated, he said, by Republicans—and has plunged it into a "catastrophe of unparalleled magnitude."

As for deficit financing, Gabrielson warned that the present Administration will, if not stopped by Republican leadership, indulge indefinitely in pump-priming ". . . with no real concern with the crushing load which the national debt is imposing on the American people."

The two-day meeting opened this morning with a closed panel discussion on the work of the strategy committee, led by former South Dakota State Chairman J. H. Bottum, jr.

Representative Harold O. Lovre (R., S. Dak.) highlighted the afternoon executive session with presentation of his two-price, self-financing farm program as the answer to the Brannan plan.

He told fellow Republicans he was firmly convinced that the future success of the party lies in what it does about the farm problem.

Lovre proposed separate price systems for normal production and for surplus production—with farmers getting 100 percent of parity for commodities produced under marketing agreements. He also advocated a stamp plan for distribution of surplus foods to the needy.

Butler Assails 'Grads' Asking Bureaus' Help

Senator Butler (R., Nebr.) called yesterday for curbs on "old grads" of Government who represent private firms before Federal agencies "with which they still have pull and influence."

Butler said some former Government officials "go out and get fancy fees and salaries for representing private firms before the very same agencies they used to dominate."

"Many of these are former New Dealers now seeking to feather their nests," he declared in an article in the American Magazine.

Specifically, he called for a general law "that would bar for at least two years any Government officials who leave office from representing private clients before the Government agency where they have worked."

Another approach, he said, would be to set up an office of technical service in the Department of Commerce.

This would serve as "a clearing house where businessmen, large and small, can quickly get all the information they need on the Government's technological, scientific and engineering programs, without resorting to an old grad."

He accused no one of illegal activities.

"There is, of course, nothing wrong with a Government official putting his experience to work in private industry at a higher salary, any more than it is wrong for the Federal Government to hire industrial experts from private industry," Butler said.

"There is a real danger, however in the temptations that exist for abuses that would undermine the public's confidence in our Government. The situation offers an invitation to skullduggery."

He said E. Merl Young, while an examiner for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "joined in recommending a 10-million-dollar loan to the house building firm Lustron, when the records showed it was a pretty poor risk."

Later, he said, Young quit his RFC job "to work as vice president of Lustron at twice his Government salary."

"We have another former official, the oil man, James A. Moffett (who has been in and out of Government in various capacities), being awarded a $1,150,000 fee for using his influence on Government officials to swing an international deal." (That award is still being fought in the courts.)

Butler declared Charles R. Denny "quit the chairmanship of the Federal Communications Commission for a reported $50,000 a year job as general counsel for the National Broadcasting Co., which is policed by FCC."

"I am not implying," Butler declared, "that in this instance there was anything improper. Mr. Denny is a widely admired young man. But I do feel that, in general, situations such as this should be avoided. It is the possibilities in the situation that disturb me."

Butler cited several other instances to support his view.

Regulated Farming

By Mark Sullivan

Extension Of Government Inquiry

CONGRESSMAN Clifford R. Hope of Kansas—who believes in price support for farm crops but opposes the new plan proposed by the Administration, the "Brannan Plan"—made the other day a detailed analysis of the Brannan proposal. He pointed out that operation of the new plan would mean "limiting and controlling the production of farm products . . ." Then he summarized the section of the Brannan proposal, as formally worded in Senate bill 1971, which deals with penalties. In Congressman Hope's words:

Sullivan

"Fifteen pages of the 86 [in the bill] relates to penalties upon farmers, and there are more pages with penalties for those who deal in agricultural products . . . Section 401 (b) provides that all farmers must keep such books and records and make such reports as may be required by the Secretary; and that if they fail to keep these reports and records they will be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction fined not more than $500 . . . My prediction is that if this bill ever becomes a law we'll . . . have to have more farm bookkeepers . . ."

That summary by Congressman Hope is borne out by the actual text of the Brannan bill. One section of it applies to "warehousemen, processors . . . of any agricultural commodity; . . . all persons engaged in the business of purchasing agricultural commodities from producers or harvesting such commodities for producers . . . all brokers and dealers in peanuts, all agents marketing peanuts for producers or acquiring peanuts for buyers and dealers, all peanut growers' cooperative associations . . ." And so on and so on. . . "

WITH tautological detail and statutory phraseology, but obvious and ominous meaning, the bill continues: "Any such person shall, from time to time on request of the Secretary, report to the Secretary such information and keep such records as the Secretary finds to be necessary to enable him to carry out the provisions of this title Such information shall be reported and such records shall be kept in accordance with forms which the Secretary shall prescribe. For the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any report made or record kept, or of obtaining information required to be furnished in any report, but not so furnished, the Secretary is hereby authorized to examine such books, papers, records, accounts, correspondence, contracts, documents, and memoranda as he has reason to believe are relevant and are within the control of such person . . ."

Threateningly the bill continues: "Any such person failing to make any report or keep any record as required by this subsection shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $500 . . ."

While the provisions of the proposed Brannan bill apply directly and primarily to farmers, or to dealers in and processors of farm commodities, let not the average citizen suppose they have no meaning for him. The trend toward pressure upon citizens for records and reports, accompanied in many cases by penalty for failure or refusal, is practically universal. Every citizen can feel about this trend what the poet Donne said about the death of one person having meaning for all persons living, "The bell tolls for thee."

THE IMPACT of Government interrogation upon the individual is illustrated in the census about to be taken. A common feeling about this was put in words by Congressman Edward H. Rees of Kansas:

"I have today introduced a bill to prohibit officials and other representatives of the Census Bureau from making inquiry with respect to the income of private individuals. The amount of the income and property of every man and woman in their own individual business . . . Folks just do not like to have census enumerators . . . inquiring as to how much money they make or how much property they own. It just does not set well . . . To permit census enumerators to pry into the private affairs of individuals is carrying things too far . . ."

A suggestion looking toward extension of Government inquiry into a new area, is in a report made this week by the Democratic majority of the Congressional Joint Committee on the Economic Report. The suggestion, which is tentative, proposes as a question whether Congress should not look into whether the steel industry has taken on characteristics of a "public utility." It also suggests that before companies in the steel industry increase prices, they should report to a Government agency the figures and facts bearing on the proposed increase. Again, let not the average citizen suppose that this suggestion, about the steel industry, like the Brannan proposal about farming, has no meaning for him. Expansion of Government regulation should be seen as a whole, as a tendency of our time, upon which the citizen needs to keep watch.

Realtor Case Argued Before Supreme Court

Are the services of a real-estate agent a commodity "in trade or commerce" and therefore subject to anti-trust laws?

The Supreme Court wrestled with that question yesterday as it heard arguments in the Government's case against both the Washington and the National associations of Real Estate Boards and a number of individual members.

Justice Jackson asked Government attorneys Peyton Ford and Victor H. Kramer just where the Government wants to draw the line between workers who have the right to combine in a union to raise wages and quasi-professional persons who may not combine to fix prices.

When Jackson suggested that bar associations might be said to be fixing prices, Ford replied he didn't want to indict lawyers. Kramer later said the determining factor would be whether the persons involved took a risk and whether they worked for profits rather than wages in an employer-employe relationship.

The Court was considering the Government attempt, unsuccessful in the lower courts, to knock out the 5 percent fee charges on real estate sales and other fees fixed by the realtors, as violations of the antitrust laws.

Ford argued that price fixing is in itself a violation of the law, regardless of whether the price is or is not reasonable. The Government contended the realtors' "code of ethics" in effect fixes the prices to be charged the public.

For the local realtors, William E. Leahy argued that the "uniform standards" of fees were "an ideal set forth as a guide" for realtors and were not price fixing. He said the rates were "observed in the ordinary case" and had been "accepted by the public and the courts" as "compensations" for personal services and not as "prices."

For the national board, Roger J. Whiteford argued that a real-estate broker is a "professional" and is exempted from the anti-trust provisions because the Sherman Act exempts the "labor of a human being" as not being "a commodity or article of commerce."

Chemurgic Ideas

Scientists Tell How to Curb Crop Surplus

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Three proposals, all put forth as ways for saving the Nation's farm economy from surplus crops, were offered here yesterday.

1. Wheeler McMillen, of New York, president of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, asked that the Government put up $100,000 more each year for five years to search out new crops for American cultivation.

2. Two New York nutritionists suggested that grain surpluses could be wiped out if Americans merely ate more livestock products.

3. Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan urged support of President Truman's Point Four program of American aid to undeveloped countries as "the needed tonic for increased world trade."

All three proposals were presented at concluding sessions and the banquet ending the three-day Chemurgic Conference at Hotel Statler. Chemurgy is the science of developing new crops and new uses for old crops.

McMillen, who at the opening session Wednesday, asked for two billion dollars, or "Manhattan Project financing," for agricultural research to end crop subsidies, scaled this down to the $500,000 request.

Secretary Brannan asked support of the Point Four program for its potential benefits to American agriculture. The program asks 45 million dollars for its initial year.

By helping the farmers of other lands, Brannan said, this Nation would eventually increase rather than decrease its industrial and agricultural exports.

Dr. Karl D. Butler of Ithaca, N. Y., farm counselor and nutritionist, said one remedy for farm surpluses would be for Americans to eat more meat and poultry products. Let the cattle, the hogs and the chickens eat up the "rough stuff," and the Americans eat the more palatable, high-protein foods they get in meat, milk and eggs, he said.

Fairfax Asks 60-Day Delay

A 60-day delay in annexation proceedings filed by the city of Falls Church against Fairfax County was asked by attorneys for the county yesterday.

A petition asking that action be stayed pending sale of three million dollars in sewerage bonds was submitted to Judges Paul E. Brown, J. R. H. Alexander and Burnett Miller, designated by the Virginia Supreme Court to hear the annexation suit

They set April 19 as the date for hearing arguments on the petition, but at the same time designated June 13 as the date for beginning of the annexation suit itself in the event the county's petition is rejected.

Board Devises Quicker Aid For Indigent

Planned changes in District Welfare Department procedure to shorten the time lag between application for and receipt of public assistance funds were announced yesterday by Welfare Director Gerard M. Shea.

Shea told the Board of Public Welfare he intends to have social workers, instead of clerks, conduct initial interviews with applicants. This, he said, will direct persons more quickly to the agencies which can help them. It will also increase office efficiency so 14 social workers may be released to investigate aid requests, he said.

Shea said the change will be put into effect after the 1951 budget is adopted.

Accidents Near Gaithersburg Kill Boy, 3, and Woman, 27

A 27-year-old woman and a 3-year-old boy were killed in separate traffic accidents in Montgomery County near Gaithersburg, Md., yesterday.

The child, Richard Hawkins, of Stewardtown, was fatally injured at 6:50 p. m. when struck by an automobile on Goshen rd. in Stewardtown, about 2 miles east of Gaithersburg.

Police said the child, son of Kermit and Virginia Hawkins, ran in front of a car driven by Harrison E. Benson, 23, also of Stewardtown. The boy died shortly after being taken to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove rescue squad.

The woman victim was Mrs. Helen Hayden, 27, of Aliquippa, Pa., who was coming to Washington with her family for the Cherry Blossom festival.

The crash accurred at 5:50 a. m. on Route 240, about 2 miles north of Gaithersburg, police said, and three others were hurt in the accident.

The victim's husband, George Hayden, jr., 35, fell asleep at the wheel, according to police, and the car ran off the road and smashed into a tree.

Mrs. Hayden died at Suburban Hospital where she and two others were taken by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove rescue squad.

Hayden's mother, Mrs. Martha Hayden, 63, was reported in critical condition with a possible skull fracture. Hayden suffered a knee cut and other injuries.

Two of Hayden's young nephews were also in the car. One, Mark Ciganovic, 10, was said to have possible head injuries but his condition was not considered critical. Mark's brother, Denny 7, was uninjured.

A school bus and three other vehicles were involved in an accident at 7:50 a. m. at the south end of the Anacostia Bridge. This was the police version:

A school bus, owned by the Alexander School, 10315 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, Md., and driven by William McQueen, 37, of 403 Franklin st. nw., struck the rear of a cab operated by Joseph W. Roop, 30, of 122 Tennessee ave. ne.

The cab in turn struck an automobile driven by Navy Lieut. William W. nKotts, 36, of 2235 Savanah ter. se In swerving, the bus also struck a car operated by Mrs. Dorothy H. Fisk, 22, of 3794 Nichols ave. se.

There were only a few children on the bus, police said.

Driver Held for Jury In October Road Death

Wright, who lived at 1127 2d st. se., was fatally injured last October 16 in an automobile-streetcar collision at 3d st. and Pennsylvaia ave. nw.

Wright was a passenger in the automobile which was driven by Tyson.

Tyson and his wife, Vivian, 31, were both injured in the crash.

Distilling Doesn't High-Proof a Film

By Richard L. Coe

"PERFECT STRANGERS" is a pleasant, minor little picture about a couple who fall in love while on jury duty. Ginger Rogers and Dennis Morgan are the stars of this new Warner arrival.

The picture, however, does suggest one of the things that are wrong with the movies. The screen play is by Edith Somers who, in turn, wrote her version from an adaptation by George Oppenheimer of a play by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, who, in their turn, adapted it to the American stage from a play by Hungary's L. Bus-Fekete.

I don't know what this suggests to your mind, but to me it conjures up the frantic efforts the large studios make to give the impression of something new while at the same time sticking closely to a formula. It seems to me this passage through many hands of something that wasn't too extraordinary in the first place, accounts for the rather listless air of the picture and that's why I bring up the embarrassing progeny of the prolific, if run of the mill, Hungarian playwright.

I think, too, this gradual process of distillation accounts for the public feeling that the movies have nothing especially original to offer. While I don't for a minute think that such a feeling is just and am perfectly willing to go along with that new slogan of the dream merchants ("Movies Are Better Than Ever"), I don't think such examples as this of sticking to rote are especially helpful in promoting the industry's latest credo. There is something blindly uncreative in carbon copies.

The present case (in her husband's play, it occupied Helen Hayes, but none too happily) concerns the jury assembled to try a man accused of murdering his wife so he may marry a younger, prettier woman. Miss Rogers is a juror separated from her husband. Morgan is a married juror and the father of two. They fall in love, it aids their perception of the case, but once it's over their jury duty must remain only a memory.

Of help in livening up the action are the other jurors, especially Thelma Ritter, playing a truck driver's addlepated wife who takes on jury duty to help finance her sixth baby. Margalo Gilmore is the social lady of the 12 and Anthony Ross plays the wolfish type.

The drawbacks are largely from dialogue-padding and a sheen of unreality - this - is-only-a-movie approach.

For the record, "Perfect Strangers" also marks the first appearance together of Miss Rogers and Morgan since they made a far better picture out of Christopher Morley's novel, "Kitty Foyle," a distillation which wasn't up to the original.

"PERFECT STRANGERS," a Warner Brothers release, produced by Jerry Wald, directed by Bretaigne Windust, screenplay by Edith Sommer from the play by Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht. At the Warner.

The blond beard, which created a stir at the Treasury Department's savings bond get-together, is for his role as "The Man Who Came to Dinner," which he'll be playing next at Jacksonville's Penthouse Theater . . . This afternoon's recital begins at 3.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY'S manuscript play by Theodore P. Smith rated applause from Visitor Robin Dorr, who reports good performances from Charles White and George Johnson . . . The play completes its run tonight at Spaulding Hall on the Howard campus.

TONIGHT also closes Catholic University's able production of the magnificent "Oedipus Rex" in the campus theater . . . "Goodbye, My Fancy" calls it a run tomorrow night at the Gayety, with a Sunday night performance to replace Monday's given up to Faye Emerson's TV dramatizing.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 31 (AP).—Ruby Louise Cubbage, 13, drowned late yesterday when the car she was driving dropped from a narrow roadway into 75 feet of water in an abandoned quarry two miles east of here.

Her father, Robert Cubbage, told police Ruby was pushing him in his other car, trying to get it started. When his motor finally caught, it appeared the car Ruby was driving went out of control. Police and firemen recovered the car and Ruby's body about 11 p. m.

You'll Be Able To Get Over 'Barricade'

By Orval Hopkins
Post Reporter

"BARRICADE," a Warner Brothers release, produced by Saul Elkins, directed by Peter Godfrey, screenplay by William Sackheim. At the Metropolitan.

THE CAST

Judith Burns	Ruth Romans
Bob Peters	Dane Clark
"Boss" Kruger	Raymond Massey
Aubrey Milburn	Robert Douglas
The Judge	Morgan Farley
Benson	Walter Coy
Tippy	George Stern
Kirby	Robert Griffin
Bandy	Frank Marlowe

THERE'S another one-word movie at the Metropolitan Theater—"Barricade." I have one word for it, too, and the editors won't permit me to use it.

The film employs the talents, or at any rate the services, of Ruth Roman, Dane Clark and Raymond Massey, who are seen on the screen, of Peter Godfrey, who directed the thing, and of William Sackheim, who wrote it.

The story is about a pretty young woman who is running away from the law, I didn't catch why, and an impetuous young man, also on the lam. They wind up, more or less together, at a Western mining site which is ruled by Raymond Massey with, as the wheeze goes, an iron hand.

Seems Massey is an admirer of Richard III, and you can imagine the histrionics. There is much throwing of water and other potables in people's faces, and kicking men when they're down. Massey is buried in the mine not once but twice. The first time doesn't take. A number of other violent occurrences take place, none of them very exciting.

Clark and Miss Roman eventually wagon off into the desert, then turn around and wagon back. By that time the camp is in flames. Massey is still alive, however, so they belt the socks off of each other, while Miss Roman looks on as if they were tatting.

It's all in Technicolor, including the dust.

'Hatchet' Cuts Up One Day Early For GW Students

The jaws of George Washington University students dropped to approximately second vest-button level yesterday.

A newspaper in the format of the campus weekly The Hatchet, announced in big headlines, "G. W. Gaming Ring Broken Up By Cops With 60 Nabbed. $15 Million Racket Has Home Here."

Then, they looked at the date on the publication—April 1. And that, which is really today is All Fools' Day.

Until late tonight, it will be a good idea not to pick up any purses from the sidewalk; kick any derby hats, nor answer any strange telephone messages, such as to call Mr. Lion at the Zoo.

Pistol-Packin' Police Chief Is Grandma

Benton, N. H., March 31 (AP).—Pistol-packin' grandma of the New Hampshire hills is Mrs. Ethel Boutin, 46, newly elected police chief.

Mrs. Boutin

Since nobody has discovered any crime to clean up in this village of 72 voters, Chief Boutin plans no immediate shakeup in her solo police department.

Biggest problem facing her is how to adjust her plumpish figure to the uniform inherited from the previous chief.

The hat and coat fit tolerably, but the trousers are too big and long—and Mrs. Police Chief doesn't want to wear them anyway.

Bullitt Demands U. S. Stiffen Russian Policy

Demanding that the Administration abandon its "purely defensive" foreign policy against Russia, William C. Bullitt, former American ambassador to that country, bitterly criticized President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson last night.

He spoke at the Georgetown University Graduate Forum, sponsored by the political science department of the University, at Gaston Hall, on the campus.

Bullitt called for immediate intervention by the United States in Formosa, Indo-China and Iran against encroachment of the Communists there and charged that at present, by its non-intervention policy in Formosa, the State Department is "preparing for another Bataan."

The former ambassador recalled that the Japanese used Formosa as a springboard for capture of the Philippines.

"If the Chinese Communists should capture Formosa," he said, "Stalin's forces would be within 250 miles of the northern Philippines."

Attacking Secretary Acheson, Bullitt said that "a minister of foreign affairs (in any European parliamentary democracy) who had tossed a great ally like China into the hands of Stalin would have been dismissed from his post."

Of President Truman, Bullitt said:

"To get more tax money for the handout program which produces votes, he has cut down the defense program which might produce survival. Our tax money is being used to buy Brannaized potatoes instead of jet planes."

He asked support for a program of Western European federation, help to Albanian exiles in regaining control of that country's government, and aid to resistance forces in Russian satellite countries.

Smooth Ice, Rough Play Mark Hockey Playoffs

Associated Press Photos

Donnybrook in Detroit

Playoff matches in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup series probably produce the roughest action in any field of sport These pictures, of fights between players of the Detroit Red Wings and Toronto's Maple Leafs, are typical. With 19 penalties called, players bashed each other with sticks, firsts and even skates. On the left, Vic Linn (white jersey) of Toronto, and Red Kelly of Detroit have a lively little set-to as Referee Bernie LaMaitre tries to part them. Center photo, Ted Lindsay of Toronto gives an unidentified Detroit skater a good going over as officials strain to separate the two willing scrappers. On the right, a young woman hockey fan hides her face in gloved hands as Leo Reise of Detroit returns to the bench with his face bleeding after taking part in one of the many battles. The teams are tied at one victory each.

PGA Says Top Stars Plan To Bolt, Form Own Group

Bauers Face Amateur Ban After Probe

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 31 (AP).—Dave Bauer, the veteran Midland, Tex., pro, is not ready to say whether his famous golfing daughters, Marlene and Alice, will enter the 1950 Women's National Amateur championship.

'I don't know what the girls are going to do," he said today in commenting on an article in Golf World magazine which asked, "Have the Bauer girls violated the amateur code?"

The magazine reported that the United States Golf Association "has been conducting an investigation and it is said by reliable sources to be building up a portfolio which will be used if Father Dave enters them in this year's National Amateur. The odds are 1000 to 1 that the USGA will not accept the entries," in the girls' amateur status.

"I haven't made up my mind about making any changes in the girls' amateur status," said Bauer, who remarked in Jacksonville several weeks ago that he didn't want his daughters to become professionals, an opinion both of them echoed.

"There is too much speculation on this subject now," he went on. "But I know Bob Harlow (Golf World editor) is my friend and he's just trying to tell us what to expect."

When asked in New York if it were true that the USGA was investigating the sisters, executive secretary Joe Dey said "It is true but we have no further comment."

Marlene isn't very talkative, especially about the Golf World article but said "I'm pretty perturbed by it."

Alice, her 22-year-old sister, is more than perturbed. She's "irked plenty."

"Now isn't that just cute. Talking about barring Marlene," snapped Alice. "So the USGA is 'frowning.' Well, if the USGA wanted to 'frown, there wouldn't be many amateurs left in the country.

"Golf hasn't had anything like Marlene. She's a definite threat for the Nationals. No one has done as much to inspire youngsters to play golf as she has. They'd be slitting their own throats if they kept her out of the Nationals and I'm not just saying this because she's my sister. But when they pick on her, I come up fighting."

Bauer Sisters Win In Ormond Beach Golf

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 31 (AP).—The Bauer sisters from Texas started out like houses afire in the otherwise all-male Ormond Beach Invitation Golf Tourney today, defeating both opponents.

Sixteen-year-old Marlene ousted Jack Lloyd of Memphis 7 and 5 while her 22-year-old sister, Alice, defeated Fred Summerlin of Daytona Beach 3 and 2. Just playing with Marlene seemed to throw Lloyd completely off his game.

Quattrocchi, Kostopoulos Gain Finals

State College, Pa., March 31.—University of Maryland tonight sent two boxers, Andy Quattrocchi and Paul Kostopoulos, into the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship tournament.

Bucky Ennis, Catholic University middleweight, was eliminated in the semifinals when he dropped a decision to Eli Thomas of Gonzaga.

Quattrocchi, 130-pound kayo artist, won a semifinals technical knockout over Wisconsin's Jim Sheeman in 1:55 of the third round tonight. He'll get his third crack of the year at Louisiana State's Ted Thrash in tomorrow's title bout. Thrash holds a decision and TKO victory over Andy already.

Kostopoulos, 135-pounder, outpointed Michigan State's Jack Tierney tonight, and tackles Washington State's Everett Conley for the title tomorrow.

Thrash, defending champion, had a close call against lanky Jim Reilly, the Pacific Coast champ from Gonzaga, but rallied to win a split decision.

Billy made Thrash miss badly in the first two rounds, but Tad rushed in the final round and scored well enough in a fast exchange to get the decision.

Conley, Kostopoulos' finals foe, won a semifinals decision over John Albarano of Penn State

Snead & Co. Dissatisfied With Setup

Chicago, March 31 (AP).—The Professional Golfers Association of America disclosed tonight that most of its headline tournament stars are planning to bolt the organization and form their own group.

The player revolt, apparently against PGA tourney operation, has been boiling within the ranks since the Phoenix Open last January, Tom Crane, PGA executive secretary, said.

Crane said the "governing body" of the group includes George Schneiter, manager of the PGA tournament bureau; Sam Snead, Jimmy Demaret, Lloyd Mangrum, Ben Hogan, Cary Middlecoff, Clayton Heafner, Johnny Palmer, Bob Hamilton, Toney Penna and Jimmy Thompson.

Little Joins "Rebels"

The newest recruit, he said, is Lawson Little, who replaced Ellsworth Vines when Vines withdrew from tourney golf recently to accept a private club job.

This imposing array of links talent is representative of the entire tournament field since it includes all the major title and money winners—the players the fans pay to see perform.

Warfare within the PGA ranks broke into the open today at Wilmington, N. C., with disclosure that a group of about 25 of the top circuit players were on the verge of establishing their own organization with or without sanction from the parent body.

"While we have known of such a program," said Crane, "news of the action has come as a surprise. The matter was discussed at Phoenix in January in a meeting of the 12 top players and Joe Novak (PGA president) and Horton Smith (PGA secretary)."

Meeting Set for Masters

Crane said Schneiter has been called to Chicago Monday to meet with the PGA tournament committee—which includes Smith, Novak and Harry Moffitt of Toledo, secretary-treasurer.

"We hope we can iron the issue out Monday—but another meeting, with the players included, probably will follow during the Masters at Augusta starting next Thursday."

Crane said he did not know the definite objectives of the group but "briefly they seek authority to handle the entire mechanics of tournament golf, controlling the funds and negotiating and signing their own agreements."

He hinted that the players disapproved of some of the power exercised by PGA delegates.

Wrist Hurt, Kiner May Miss Opener

Phoenix, Ariz., March 31 (AP).—Four X-rays disclosed today that Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh Pirate slugger, is suffering from a severe wrist sprain and may not be ready for the opening game.

Kiner sprained his right wrist in a collision at first base during an exhibition game March 14. He returned to action yesterday but was forced to leave the game after fouling off pitch in the seventh inning of an exhibition against the Cleveland Indians at Tucson.

Succeeds Talley

Capt. Agnew Named Police Member of D. C. Ring Board

Capt. John J. Agnew was appointed the Police Department's member of the District Boxing Commission yesterday.

The 49-year-old police officer succeeds Inspector Clarence Talley, whose retirement from the force and the Boxing Commission is effective today.

JOHN AGNEW

For Agnew, it's a second tour of duty as a nonpaid member of the Boxing Commission. As a lieutenant, he served for 21 months until May 27, 1943, when he was relieved of duty when the D. C. Commissioners decided an officer of higher rank should serve on the ring board.

Agnew, one of the most popular members of the Police Department, was recommended by Maj. Bob Barrett, Superintendent of Police.

Agnew joins Chairman Harvey Miller on the three-man Boxing Commission. One more appointment is still to be made, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Thomas Morgan last year.

The District Commissioners, who announced Agnew's appointment, gave no indication when it would be filled.

3 D. C. CYO Teams In Philly Playoffs

Philadelphia, March 31.—Three teams representing Washington, D. C. play here tomorrow in the Middle-Atlantic CYO basketball playoffs.

Henrich, With Bad Knee, Is Worried

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 31 (AP).—Tommy Henrich doesn't know whether he'll be in shape to play when the season opens in three weeks.

Henrick has been hobbled by an injury to his left knee that has kept him out of all but the first three exhibition games.

"I won't know until a day or two whether to be concerned or not," he said today

"I going to test it in a day or two with some straight running. If it will hurt me to run, then I guess I'll have something to worry about."

Tony Janiro Fights Draw With Graziano

New York, March 31 (AP).—Tony Janiro, the 22-year-old comeback kid from Youngstown, Ohio, laughed at the 12-to-5 odds against him tonight as he fought former Middleweight Champion Rocky Graziano to a 10-round draw before 16,983 spectators in Madison Square Garden. Graziano weighed 159¾, Janiro 152¾.

Handsome Tony nearly knocked down Rocky in the first round and after taking a severe beating during the middle rounds, came back to grab the last heat to earn his draw.

Judge Arthur Aidala voted for Graziano, 6-3-1. Judge Arthur Susskind scored for Janiro 5-4-1, while Referee Judge Walsh split his ballot right down the middle, five rounds and 10 points for each battler. The Associated Press card had Graziano ahead, 5-4-1.

The crowd, largest of the winter fight season here, had hardly settled in their seats when handsome Tony let go with a lighting fast left and right to the head that almost brought Rocky down.

But the tough New Yorker weathered the storm and was holding his own at the end of the round.

Janiro lost his steam in the sixth and Rocky handed him a severe beating through the next three frames. Rocky staggered his lighter rival several times but couldn't bring Janiro down.

It was Rocky's first fight in the Garden in four years.

Nats Score 4 In 6th, Beat Minneapolis

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 31.—All of a sudden—and this is no April Fools' Day gag—the Nats came up with a well-pitched ball game. Honest, and no joke, Joe Haynes and Rookie Bill Dozier held the Minneapolis Millers to one hit today and shut 'em out, 6-0.

It was Manager Bucky Harris' finest hour and forty minutes of the spring training season. He saw some pitching that, even allowing for the minor league opposition, was no end heartening at a time when he was wondering where his next winning pitcher was coming from.

Haynes was comparatively magnificent, bouncing out of his previous futility this spring with a quality job. It was he who yielded Minneapolis' only hit—a cheap infield thing by Bama Rowell with two out in the first inning. But after that he was untouchable, and turned a 4-0 lead over to Dozier in the seventh.

Hudson's X-rays Encouraging

That latter young man won himself another and longer look by the Nats by tacking three hitless, shutout innings onto Haynes' string. From the first to the ninth inning, not a Minneapolitan — if that's what you call 'em—reached base against Haynes and Dozier.

Haynes walked nobody, and was actually cutting loose a fast ball without wincing, for the first time since his winter operation in 1948.

Harris' cup was overflowing today, in fact. Before the game he learned that Sid Hudson's X-rays had revealed no bone injuries, and the big righthander was happily saying he felt fine, except for a bit of stiffness in his back.

Hudson was irked by the report that he had reinjured his shoulder and the speculation that his pitching career was at an end. "They had me dead and buried," he complained. "I can work this stiffness out in a week."

There was some doubt that the Nats were going to fracture their four-game losing streak today, even as late as the sixth inning.

See NATS, Page 13, Column 3.

Furgol Second With 138

Fazio Holds Lead With 68-135

Wilmington, N. C., March 31 (AP). George Fazio and Ed Furgol, two golfers with the same double purpose, were running one-two tonight at the halfway mark of the $10,000 Wilmington Azalea Open tournament.

Fazio, first day leader from Washington's Woodmont Country Club, scored a four-under par 68 for a 36-hole total of 135, three strokes ahead of Furgol, the Royal Oak, Mich., pro with the withered left arm. The later turned in his second straight 69 over the 6652-yard Cape Fear Country Club course.

The two came here engaged in a duel for the last open position in next week's Augusta Masters' classic. Fazio holds a slight lead over the season, based on performance in tournaments. Furgol must outscore him here to gain the position, in addition to taking down $2,000 top money in this event which winds up Sunday.

The opening round's closest challengers were unable to keep step with Fazio's blistering pace today.

As a result, Joe Kirkwood, jr., Hollywood, Calif., vaulted into third place on a 69 for 139, four strokes out of the lead.

Sharing fourth place at 140 were Cary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach, Fla., and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., each with par 72 today after starting the round only a stroke off the lead.

Fazio's putter was working most of the way today. He canned 17 and 5-footers to open with two birdies, then rammed home putts from 8 feet on 5 and 12 on 7 to go four under. He lost one stroke with a four on the short 8 to turn in 33.

A 14-foot putt was true on 13 for a birdie 3, but he lost that advantage by 3-putting the 14th green. Birdies on 15 and 17 put him on the track again. He put a ball out of bounds on the dogleg 18th for a 1-over 5.

Silent Type Makes Loud Noise in Feature Race at Laurel

For 3-Year-Olds

Suleiman Is Top-Weight In The Laurel

Laurel, Md., March 31.—A dozen 3-year-olds were named today for the Laurel Stakes, 6-furlong event which will highlight tomorrow's program at Laurel race course. This will be the first time the Laurel has been restricted to 3-year-olds for when run in the fall previously it was an all-age race ran at either a mile or a mile and a sixteenth. It is worth $7500 added.

Under the conditions of the stake, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Suleiman will be high weight of the field under 119 pounds, while in at 116 pounds are H. B. Cohen's Jess Linthicum and W. Taylor Leathbury's Eastern Flyway. Robert M. Wood's High Frequency has an assignment of 114 pounds, while the remainder are in at 113 pounds.

Included in this group are Bobanet Stable's Mystagogue, Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman, Cedar Farm's Halter, Mrs. H. S. Clark's Puppet, Alan T. Clarke's King Mowlee, High Ground Stable's Prepared, Kenilworth Farm's Broken Crown, and Dion K. Kerr's Fleet Argo.

Suleiman earned top weight through victory in last season's Grand Union Hotel stakes while the 116-pound assignments for Jess Linthicum and Eastern Flyway are the result of triumphs in the Spalding Lowe Jenkins and the Bowie Kindergarten, respectively.

However, despite these performances, Kinsman looms as probable choice in the Laurel. His races in Florida this winter were excellent and one of the occasions he defeated both Theory and Oil Capitol.

3-Year-Old Wins First Of Career

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., March 31.—Silent Type, a 3-year-old who has been running so far back that he could not even hear the cheers for the winners, picked today to bound out of the maiden ranks.

And, of all things, he beat a nag named Blabber Mouth to the wire.

Bred and raised at the King Ranch deep in the heart of Texas, the colt raced 10 times in 2 years without getting a sniff of the mutuel money.

However, he dropped far down the class ladder and the majority of the customers in a crowd of 9333 installed him as the favorite in the field of a dozen 3-year-olds who will not see the Derby, Preakness or Belmont unless they are looking out of a stable door on the back stretch.

Bobby Martin Up

Jockey Bobby Martin, Baltimore's gift to the saddle wars, rode Silent Type home three lengths ahead of the aforementioned Blabber Mouth with Ned's Polly third, an additional two lengths back.

Silent Type was clocked in 1:46 for the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track and under cloudless skies. His backers collected at the rate of $7.40 for each $2 investment.

Ned's Polly, probably named for a talking parrot, and Blabber Mouth did the majority of the forward runing while Silent Type was far back.

Approaching the stretch, Blabber Mouth moved to Ned's Polly, but along came Silent Type, looking like a screaming headline. The King Ranch colt not only moved abreast of the front pair but darted into the lead and it was all over.

Haynes, Dozier Hurl 1-Hitter For Nats, 6-0

despite Haynes' one-hit shutout job over that distance. Going into their half of the sixth, the Nats had a meager 1-0 lead.

Adrian Zabala, the ex-Giant southpaw who once jumped to Mexico and is now working for their Minneapolis farm club, yielded the Nats only four hits in the first five innings. They got a run in the first when Noren rapped a triple to right and scored on Robinson's single, but in the next four innings they got nothing.

Manuscript Lists Adam's Daughter

New York, March 31 (U.P.).—A hitherto unknown 900-year-old Latin manuscript has disclosed that Adam had a daughter whose name never has been mentioned in any versions of the Old Testament, a Biblical scholar said today.

Dr. Guido Kisch said the manuscript, the oldest and most complete and accurate version of the history known as "Biblical Antiquities," mentions a daughter named Noaba.

The Bible lists Cain, Abel and Seth, but not Noaba. It merely states that Adam "begat sons and daughters."

Kisch brought this new information to light in a book, published today, containing the complete Latin text of the document. He spent 10 years studying the manuscript before writing the work.

The ancient document was written by a man now referred to as "Pseudo-Philo," because in the Middle Ages he was thought through error to be the Jewish philosopher Philo of Alexandria. Kisch's book is entitled "Pseudo-Philo's Liber Antiquitatum Biblicarum" and was published by the University of Notre Dame Press.

The history, rooted in ancient Jewish tradition and legend and containing some of the author's own inventions, was written originally in Hebrew by a Jew in Palestine about 70 A. D. It elaborates on the story of the Tower of Babel, says Pharoah's daughter named the child she had found Moyses because his mother had called him Melchial, and tells a story about Kenaz, a Judite, who it mentioned only by name in the Bible.

The original Hebrew version was translated soon after 70 A. D. into Greek. In that form the Catholic Church copied and distributed it. Both the Hebrew and Greek translations were lost more than 1000 years ago. There were several Latin translations, however, and the present manuscript was copied from an older one in the Austrian monastery of Admont. It was preserved there nearly 900 years until the Nazis entered Austria and ultimately was bought by a New York collector.

Elder Delafield, assistant editor of the Review and Herald, official Adventist publication, served the congregation on a part-time basis from 1947 until February.

Under his leadership, membership increased from 40 to 200 and funds for the building were raised.

Passover to Begin At Sundown Today

Lent Ends April 8

Palm Sunday Ushering in Holy Week

Holy Week, the most solemn season in the Christian year, will begin with Palm Sunday.

The week brings to a climax the Lenten observance which began on Ash Wednesday, February 22. Lent ends at noon Saturday, April 8.

In Roman Catholic and some Episcopal churches, the week is a time for a number of traditional services recalling the last events in the life of Christ.

Early Sunday morning the palms, which will later be given to worshipers, are blessed.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening Tenebrae services are held. While the prophesies of the Old Testament relating to Christ's suffering and death are recited, the candles in the church are extinguished one by one until only one lighted candle remains.

This is taken behind the main altar and the church plunged in utter darkness to signify the darkness which fell over the earth at the time of Christ's death. Later, the candle is brought back and the church again lighted.

At the mass on Holy Thursdays, two Hosts are consecrated. One is consumed by the priest during the mass and the other is placed on an Altar of Repose, a side altar. It is a custom among Catholics to visit seven of these altars, decorated with flowers, on Holy Thursday.

The Host placed on the Altar of Repose is used for the mass of the presanctified on Good Friday. Afterward the altar is stripped of all linens and sacred vessels are removed. The sanctuary light is extinguished in the main church signifying the lack of Christ's real presence there.

From noon until 3 p. m. the Tre Ore or three hour service, with sermons on the Seven Last Words of Christ, is held. In many churches there are Stations of the Cross, depicting the stages of Christ's passion and death.

Passover, the Jewish festival of deliverance, begins at sundown today.

For Orthodox and Conservative Jews it lasts for eight days. For Reformed Jews the holiday will end at sundown April 8.

The oldest holiday in the Jewish calendar, Passover commemorates the flight of the Jews led by Moses from the oppression of the Pharaohs in Egypt to the Promised Land.

A traditional part of the celebration is the home service, known as the Seder. Special foods, including matzoh an unleavened bread, ceremonial wine, and bitter herbs are eaten.

Haggadah Read at Home

In the home service, the Haggadah, which tells the story of the Passover, is read. The youngest child in the house asks four questions about the festival which are answered by the head of the house.

The Washington Hebrew congregation will begin Passover with a family worship service at the temple, 822 8th st. nw., at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Passover services of Beth Sholom congregation, 8th and Shepherd sts. nw., will begin today at 7 p. m. Other holiday services of the congregation will be at 8:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. Sunday and 8:30 and 10:30 a. m. Monday.

Patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital will be given a Seder by the Hebrew Sisters Aid Circle Passover Fund and Hospital Service Committee and the National Jewish Welfare Board at 7 p. m. today. The JWB will also sponsor a Passover service for patients at the hospital at 9 a. m. Monday.

Montgomery Seder Today

The Montgomery County Jewish Community will have a ceremonial Seder at 7 p. m. today at the center, 2901 East-West hgwy., Chevy Chase, Md. Members of the armed forces have been invited to attend.

On Monday, Rabbi Henry Segal of B'nai Israel Synagogue will conduct a Seder for young adults at the Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw. It is sponsored by the Jewish Young Adult Council of Washington.

First day of Passover services will be at 9:30 a. m. Sunday at the Arlington Jewish Center, 2920 Lee blvd. A children's service is scheduled for 10 a. m. Monday.

Truman Won't Call Off Hospital Cutback

President Truman has rejected a request from a House Democrat to hold up a pending cutback in military hospitals pending a Congressional study of the proposal, it was revealed yesterday.

Mr. Truman made his position clear in a letter to Representative Clyde Doyle (D., Calif.). Doyle is a member of a House Armed Services Committee which is opposed to military plans to close 10,000 of the 47,000 active beds operated by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

"If we really want to make the income of the Government meet its expenditures," the President said, "the only way it can be done is to cut off some expenditures."

The cutback was proposed by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson. The President backed Johnson to the limit and, in so doing, slapped hard at "pressure groups." In his letter from Key West, the President said:

"I appreciated your telegram of the twenty-eighth very much. As you know, I have been investigating this situation for some time past.

"It is most difficult to arrive at a conclusion on the subject, for the simple reason that whenever an attempt is made to economize in any department, three are always pressure groups endeavoring with everything at their command to prevent that organization for efficiency which is so necessary to the operation of our Government.

"I do appreciate, of course, your personal interest in the matter in your district in California, and would like to see things like that carried on, but if we really want to make the income of the Government meets its expenditures, the only way it can be done is to cut off some of those expenditures."

The Long Beach (Calif.) Naval Hospital, in Doyle's Congressional district, is one of five general hospitals of the Army and Navy to be closed under Johnson's economy order.

Others are Valley Forge, Phoenixville, Pa.; Murphy, Waltham, Mass.; Oliver, Augusta, Ga., and Percy Jones, Battle Creek, Mich. In addition, capacity of a number of other hospitals is to be reduced.

The Armed Services Subcommittee last week completed a tour of many of the hospitals affected, and members said they would seek to halt the cutback on the grounds it is unwarranted.

In another development, a House Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday informally agreed to reconsider a 12.8 million dollar cut it imposed on the Defense Department medical budget for next year.

Two Suicide Verdicts

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday issued certificates of suicide in the deaths of Harry C. Smithson, 60, 1241 G st. se., found shot to death Thursday in his home, and David C. Barnes, 69, 32 Q st. nw., who jumped from the Calvert st. bridge Thursday.

Prince Georges Officials Air School Budget

The Prince Georges County Commissioners and the Prince Georges School Board yesterday held a joint executive session to discuss the county's school budget for the 1951 fiscal year.

The commissioners had asked the school board to cut back its budget by about $200,000. In addition, the board has learned that it will receive about $120,000 less in State education funds than it anticipated.

At session's end, G. Gardner Shugart, county school superintendent, said the county commissioners were thoroughly briefed on the importance of each item in next year's school budget. He said it would now be up to them to decide where they would pare off budget items. The county budget must be adopted by April 15.

Commonwealth Firm Wins Gas Rights in Virginia

By The Associated Press

The Virginia-supported company won power commission approval over the Carolina-supported Piedmont Natural Gas Corp.

Although denying Piedmont a certificate to serve cities in Virginia and the Carolinas, the commission is permitting the company to apply for service only to its proposed Carolina markets.

Piedmont contended during a six-month hearing on the applications that its project is not feasible without the Virginia markets.

Annual Newspaper Awards Made by Headliners Club

Atlantic City, N. J., March 31 (AP).—The Chicago Daily News today won its second headliner award in 10 years for a series of illustrated stories on Chicago's "Skid Row."

The newspaper received the public service award, one of 17 citations announced by judges in the 16th annual Headliners Club contest for outstanding journalism, news photography and news broadcasting.

The Headliners Club is an organization sponsored by the city of Atlantic City. It was formed 16 years ago to give journalism awards.

Two Chicago Daily News reporters, William F. Mooney and Frederick H. Bird, jr., were listed for special awards as authors of the "Skid Row" series which depicted the plight of vagrants in the Windy City.

The judges' committee, headed by Associated Press sports cartoonist Tom Paprocki, cited the "Skid Row" photographs accompanying the series "as one of the most outstanding presentations in public service by a newspaper in the history of the awards."

The Chicago Daily News won an award in 1940 for general excellence in foreign news reporting.

AP Photographer Honored

Murray Becker of New York, chief photographer of the Associated Press, received an award for the best sports action picture of 1949. It was a sequence of three rapid-fire photographs showing Johnny Pesky of the Boston Red Sox sliding home safely in a close game with the New York Yankees.

Kingsbury Smith of the International News Service received the 1949 foreign news award for his interviews with Joseph Stalin. Smith won an award in 1947 for his coverage of the Nuernburg war criminal trials.

Other 1949 award winners included:

The Federal Diary
by Jerry Klutz

Good Friday Absences In Government to Be Charged Against Leave

Just to keep the record straight, Federal employes won't be given three hours off next Friday as many of them have been told.

The White House has merely reminded Federal officials that next Friday is Good Friday, and that they should be liberal in granting annual leave to employes who wish to attend religious services on that day. Any time off employes take on that day must be charged against leave.

STORY: A girl called Civil Service to require if it had any jobs open for nurses. . . . "Yes, we have," a commission employe told her. "We have a test open now for nurses in the Indian Service."

"I'm sorry," the girl replied, "but I'm not interested in going to India. I want to stay in this country."

HANDSOME: The average salary of all employes of the 18 standing committees of the House, clerical as well as professional, is $7745. Not bad.

RETIRING: E. M. Whitcomb is retiring as director of investigation and chairman of the planning and reviewing committee of the Tariff Commission after more than 30 years of service. . . . Also retiring is A. F. Sievers, Agriculture's drug authority, after 43 years of service. Sievers has written many booklets on plant-producing drugs.

RECORD: John C. Page, the property custodian of the House, holds a unique record. He and his late father together have served the House more than 95 years. Page has worked on Capitol Hill for 31 years. His father had worked there for 64 years when he died at the age of 74. He started as a messenger when he was only 9 years old.

NOTES: Representative Ed Rees (R., Kans.) will speak at a meeting at 2 p. m. today of the National Association of Retired Civil Employes to be held in the Natural History Building, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw. . . . At Federal Power, Rose S. Shaw and Rolla R. Sabine are retiring today after 40 and 32 years of service, respectively . . . At the Bureau of Standards, Dr. Raymond E. Wilson has been appointed chief of the temperature measurement section . . . At ECA, Administrator Paul Hoffman will meet with all of his employes at 11:15 a. m. Monday to commemorate the second birthday of the signing of the ECA bill by President Truman.

CAPITOL HILL: Chairman Johnston of the Senate Civil Service Committee, has in a bill to bring county agricultural conservation committee employes under both Civil Service and classification laws. If approved, the several thousand employes would get pay boosts and annual and sick leave . . . At the suggestion of the National Customs Service Association, Representative John Dingell (D., Mich.) has put in a bill to require Uncle Sam to pay the back pay claims of employes in Customs' inspection service.

POSTMASTERS: They are under Civil Service and Civil Service Chairman Harry B. Mitchell wants everyone to understand it. The chairman has given his wholehearted support to a campaign being conducted by the National Association of Postmasters to inform the American public of the true position of postmasters in the Civil Service system. He points out that postmasters were brought under Civil Service in 1938, and that their appointments are handled like all other Civil Service personnel, except that postmasters must win Senate confirmation.

VETERANS: The House Monday will get itself involved in the complex employment problem of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It will take up the bill to limit apprentice jobs in Government to veterans. Civil Service would have the authority to open apprentice tests on a Nation-wide basis or limit them to veterans in certain areas.

The bill is aimed directly at the bureau which recently held what it considered was a "promotion" test for apprentices. Only a few employes in the bureau were allowed to file for it. Behind-the-scenes of the bitter controversy are charges of racial discrimination, employe union fights, and plain personal bitterness between several of the chief antagonists. It's hard to find the right answer in such surroundings.

Blossoms and Beauty Bloom as Festival Opens . . .

Connecticut Girl to Reign As Queen of Blossom Fete

Joan Russell Wins Honor by Spin of Wheel; Festival Under Way Today

By S. L. Fishbein
Post Reporter

Miss Joan Russell, of Hamden, Conn., slim, green-eyed, 20 and blooming, was chosen Queen of the blossomless Cherry Blossom Festival which opens today.

All Washington and thousands of out-of-town visitors—everyone but the cherry blossoms—is alerted for the annual salute to the blossoms which starts at 1 p. m. at the Watergate at the foot of Lincoln Memorial.

Queen Joan, a brunette, may have to reign in the rain. The weatherman forecasts temperatures around 60, clouded skies, perhaps showers in the afternoon. Sunday should be clear and cool.

Easter Sunday Expected

Nature's other important contribution to the festivities, the enchanting pink border around the Tidal Basin, also will be missing. The cool spring has kept the blossoms nestled in their buds. With warm weather, National Capital Parks thinks the buds will unfurl for Easter Sunday.

Today's festivities are in three parts. The first, beginning at 1 p. m. will be the Navy Hour broadcast during which Lt. Comdr. Charles F. Brendler and the Navy Band will play a half-hour concert. Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews and the Cherry Blossom Queen will be introduced over the nationwide broadcast.

At 1:30 p. m. Ezra Stone, hero of the Aldrich Family, and Milt Slosser, playing at the organ, will take over for Festival Sing Time.

The show will roll into its climax at 2 p. m. with the beginning of the pageant, "Spring is a Wonderful Thing."

Symbol of Awakening

Singers, tap dancers, ballet dancers, skaters and a chorus will combine to symbolize the awakening of the green time of the year.

Here Miss Kay DeWitt, Washington's Miss Sesquicentennial, will introduce the 50 Cherry Blossom Princesses. Toward the end of the pageant, Secretary Matthews will take the stage to crown Her Majesty, the 1950 Cherry Blossom Queen.

For the pageant, Allan Zee, production manager of the Capitol Theater in New York City, has written original lyrics to music composed by Sam Jack Kaufman. Zee and Joel Margolis, manager of the Capitol Theater here, are coproducers.

The pageant, including coronation scene, will be presented a second time at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. As in the past, the festival is sponsored by the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade.

Blossoms on View

Live cherry blossoms were on view last night at the Shoreham Hotel as part of the trappings for the formal reception and supper dance for the princesses.

Picked from the 48 states, Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico, the Princesses were escorted by officers supplied by the area military commands. Barnee and his Shoreham Blue Room Orchestra supplied the music. Edward R. Carr and Ezra Stone were masters of ceremonies.

Midway in the program, the giant wheel of fortune was brought front and center for the fateful whirl that was to promote Princess Joan Russell to Queen Joan Russell.

Mary Jane Hayes, Miss Washington of 1949, set the wheel a-spinning and after breathless seconds it came up blank. The second time Mary Jane spun, the pointer clicked to a blank again, then snapped over into "Miss Connecticut."

A student at the Washington School for Secretaries, Queen Joan lives at 6123 30th st. nw. She attended Briarcliff Junior College, and her father William Woodwren of Hamden, Conn., is vice president in charge of public relations of the Southern New England Telephone Co. She has two brothers in the insurance business.

3 Warehouse Men Held on Theft Charge

$900 in Merchandise Stolen in 18 Months, Hecht Officials Say

Three Hecht Co. employes were arrested yesterday and charged with systematically stealing merchandise from the company's warehouse over the past year and a half.

Hecht Co. officials estimated the men stole about $900 worth of goods over that period.

Arrested were David V. Mason, 27, a stockboy in the company warehouse, who lives at 1839 13th st. nw., and two veteran delivery truck drivers, Prince Albert Blount ,33, of 1116 21st st. ne., and Haywood North, 32, of 1919 12th st. nw.

All were charged with grand larceny and will be arraigned in Municipal Court today.

Their arrest, police said, followed questioning of a fourth Hecht Co. employe, Alphonso Garnett, 39, of 4221 Maine pl. ne.

Police said Garnett was charged with embezzlement because he returned to the warehouse Tuesday night $124 short in his c. o. d. collections. They said he was not implicated in the merchandise looting but knew about it and told them the details when he was questioned.

He also is to be arraigned today in Municipal Court.

The alleged thefts took place in the company warehouse at 1401 New York ave. ne.

According to police, Mason, the stockboy, would sneak out merchandise selected in advance and slip it into the loading bins of Blount and North.

Then, police said, the drivers would load the stolen goods on their trucks, along with the regular packages they were to deliver, and during the day would drop the loot at either the home of Blount or North.

That night the three would meet and split the "take," according to police.

Only household items, such as furniture, pressure cookers, electric irons, sheets and other linens, were taken.

Police said the three men made statements that they sold the merchandise to friends and acquaintances at half price.

Detectives said they were informed that during the past year and a half between $9000 and $10,000 worth of merchandise has been stolen from the warehouse.

Small Samples

D. C. Voting 4 to 1 for Fast Time

District residents seem to favor daylight saving time by as much as 4 to 1 in some precincts, spot checks and small samples of the balloting showed yesterday.

The votes were part of the 200,000 ballots distributed by the 14 police precincts in a test ordered by the District Commissioners on the "fast time" issue.

The plan was to have each precinct enlist a civilian "captain" for each block, who would have residents in his block cast their votes.

Yesterday most precincts had mustered civilian captains. Three precincts, however, reported they still had some undistributed ballots.

In Fifth Precinct, four blocks were still not assigned. Houses had been canvassed—but nobody wanted to carry the torch, or at least the ballot, for democracy. Captains in odjoining blocks will be asked to take on the extra work.

A definite count, though small, was made in No. 14, of 400-odd ballots turned in yesterday. It went: 308 votes in favor of daylight saving, 79 against, and 22 who "don't care." These represented less than 4 percent of the 12,000 ballots distributed there.

No. 5 reported "better than 2 to 1 for daylight saving." In No. 6 the trend was "daylight saving a little ahead." Balloting in No. 7 was apparently "pretty heavily in favor" of fast time. In No. 13, daylight saving seemed to be ahead "probably more than 2 to 1."

Knife Attack Charged To Cab Passenger

Maryland State Police reported last night that Robert J. Hammill, 27, 16 W. Wyatt ave., Alexandria, a cab driver, was threatened by a Fort Belvoir soldier with a knife.

According to Hammill, the soldier, Samuel L. Avery, asked the cab driver to take him to Baltimore. One mile north of Laurel, Md., Avery put a knife against Hammill's neck.

Hamill swerved the cab into oncoming traffic. State Trooper A. W. Plummer investigated the tie-up, caught and charged Avery with assault with attempt to rob.

Two Arrested In Shoe Repair Shop Raid

Gaming Charges Placed Against Owner, Shine Boy

Capt. Howard Covell, First Precinct commander, led a seven-man raiding party that arrested two men on gaming charges yesterlay at a shoe repair shop at 521½ 9th st. nw.

Frank Spasaro, 56, the proprietor, of 1929 1st st. nw., was charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips, and James H. Nabors, 38, a shoeshine boy, of 4413 A st. se., was charged with possession of lottery slips.

Spasaro was released in $1500 bond and Nabors in $500 bond for appearance today before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Joining Covell in the raid at 2 p. m. were Lieut. David McCutcheon and five policemen, all of the First Precinct. Covell said McCutchéon had placed the shop under observation and on the basis of what was witnessed, a search warrant was obtained.

Virginian Suffers Facial Injuries When Saw Breaks

Charles Douglas, 20, 1034 S. Washington st., Falls Church, Va., received facal cuts last night while operating a portable saw, Arlington Hospital officials reported.

Douglas was cutting wood in the Chesterbrook section near Falls Church when the handle of the saw broke. He fell foreward on the saw, cutting both upper and lower lips.

He was taken to Arlington Hospital where 50 stitches were taken. He was later released.

District Auto Tag Sale Ends With Record Total of 151,278

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

The Department of Vehicles and Traffic wearily closed its books last night after selling a record-breaking 151,278 District auto tags in March.

George E. Keneipp, director of Vehicles and Traffic, estimated 5000 persons have not yet registered their cars. Most, he guessed, decided to wait until Monday to avoid the last-minute rush.

According to law, 1950 tags should have been placed on vehicles by last midnight. However, police announced they would look the other way until this morning.

Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller, commanding the traffic division, instructed police to ticket cars bearing old tags after 8 a. m. and to impound tagless cars left on the streets.

Any unregistered car which must pass inspection before tags are issued will have to be towed to the inspection station, Keneipp said.

Maximum penalty for driving a vehicle without proper tags is a $300 fine or a 10-day jail sentence or both, traffic officials said.

Traffic officials had planned to station a policeman at the end of the line at closing time yesterday to shoo away latecomers. But they didn't need him.

By the 3:45 p. m. closing time the line that had extended halfway around the Municipal Center in the morning had melted away. Only a few persons still waited in the tag and title rooms.

Last persons to buy tags yesterday were Misses Garvine Chambers and Dolly Bullard, of 104 6th st. nw., who own a car jointly.

First person to miss the deadline was Victor B. Blackburn of 646 9th st. ne. A free-lance barber, Blackburn said he had been in line earlier but had to leave to straighten out a tangle over a change in address. He'll have to come back Monday, the guards said.

Number of tags sold in March this year was 12,900 above the March, 1949, figure, traffic officials said. Keneipp estimated this figure would mount close to 200,000 by next January.

Keneipp said he asked persons standing in line yesterday why they waited until the last inute to buy tags and got these answers:

(1) Didn't have the money.
(2) Was too busy.
(3) "I'm down here for the boss—don't know why he waited."
(4) "I like to stand in line."

Last midnight was also the tag deadline in Maryland. Residents of Virginia have until April 15 to buy 1950 tags.

Bad Arithmetic Delays Sesqui Amphitheater

Because of a contractor's error and recent bad weather, the new Rock Creek Park amphitheater will not be ready for the Sesqui's symphonic drama until July 1 at the earliest, instead of June 15.

This was announced yesterday by Frank T. Gartside, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks. The show is to be the biggest feature of the 1950 Sesqui celebration and the amphitheater is the only permanent structure planned.

Gartside said Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren has ruled that E. L. Daniels, Arlington contractor, can withdraw his low bid of $264,466 for the main part of the amphitheater because no contract has been signed. Warren ruled Daniels had a "reasonable" reason because he had omitted through inadvertence an estimate on one part of the job and a decimal had been misplaced in computing another part. It has taken about three weeks to settle this question.

The result is that the park agency will either have to accept the second low bid, about $30,000 higher than Daniels', or trim down the job. Originally estimated to cost around $300,000, the amphitheater would cost about $564,000 with the second high bid. The additional $30,000 probably would have to come from the Sesqui Commission, which is providing the park agency with funds from its three-million-dollar appropriation. A decision is likely within a week, Gartside said.

Meanwhile, the Sesqui announced appointment of Capital Transit Co. president, Edward D. Merrill, as chairman of the transporation committee.

Restaurant's Refusal to Serve 3 Negroes Weighed by Court

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The validity of the city's 1872 and 1873 anti-discrimination laws was argued yesterday before Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers and a packed courtroom of more than 200.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, prosecutor, and Ringgold Hart, counsel for Thompson's Restaurant, 725 14th st. nw., agreed that three "well-behaved" Negroes were denied service on February 28 at the eating place.

For the remainder of almost non-stop 2½-hour arguments, the lawyers differed strongly, King supporting the laws and Hart declaring them invalid on several counts. Judge Myers took the case under advisement.

The principal points of contention were:

1. Hart contended the anti-discrimination acts enacted by the city's Legislative Assembly of that period went beyond the powers vested by Congress.

King argued that the 1871 Act creating the Assembly gave it the same powers as any State except that Congress could repeal any legislation adopted. He said 18 States have adopted anti-discrimination laws.

2. The tall, white-haired Hart emphasized his view that the laws are unconstitutional and unreasonable. He said they interfere with the property rights of restaurateurs and attempt to upset a pattern of segregation in force in schools, playgrounds and pools here.

He mentioned the Anacostia pool rioting last summer in discussing what could happen if the laws were enforced.

King, chief prosecutor for the city at Municipal Court, who had been arguing in calm, legalistic terms, exploded at the "unreasonable" charge.

He asked whether it was reasonable to expect Negro lawyers to travel to Union Station or National Airport for lunch when they had cases in court. He pointed out that Negroes have been traveling on public streetcars for several years without difficulty.

He said the American Government is based on the concept of "no discrimination on the basis of race, color or religion" and "Christianity is based on that, too." He said many residents have been paying "only lip service" to this in their daily living.

3. Hart said the laws were repealed, in effect, by subsequent legislation and also by implication, although he admitted he could find no statute repealing it directly. He cited an 1812 law forbidding slaves to travel city streets after 10 p. m. as an example of another law, never directly repealed, but "which is ridiculous" today.

King said since the laws were never repealed the question before the court is simply whether the laws are a proper exercise of police power. "I believe it is. The police power on this is well established," he declared.

4. The restaurant's counsel argued the laws have been in disuse for 78 years and are now obsolete.

The city's lawyer said laws are repealable not by disuse or the judiciary, but by the legislative bodies. King said the 1872 and 1873 Acts were not enforced after 1875 because Congress passed a broader Civil Rights Act, which was in force until 1913 when it was declared unconstitutional. By that time the earlier acts were forgotten.

Merchants May Ask Damages For Dupont Circle Construction

Dupont Circle area merchants may ask Congress for an appropriation to cover losses they have suffered through the construction of the underpass, it was learned yesterday.

Upon advice of attorneys, Horace J. Meyers, president of the Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association, said, merchants may ask for redress on the grounds of "inequity of opportunity."

On these grounds, Meyers said, merchants could claim that they have been unable to conduct normal business during construction of the underpass while merchants elsewhere who will benefit by the underpass have not been affected.

Meyers has scheduled a meeting with interested businessmen and a lawyer this morning to discuss the possibilities further.

Claims, which Meyers said could easily run into several hundred thousand dollars, would be lumped together in one bill. The businessmen, however, would be acting as individuals and the Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association would not be involved, Meyers said.

The underpass is scheduled to be opened officially on April 25, but the surface roads are expected to be ready for the Connecticut Avenue Easter parade April 9.

Zoo to Be Presented Nehru's Baby Elephants on April 15

The two baby elephants given the Children of America by Prime Minister Nehru of India will be officially presented in ceremonies at the Zoo, April 15.

Madame Pandit, Ambassador of India and Nehru's sister, will make the presentation at 3 p. m., the Embassy announced yesterday.

It is expected to be one of the great events of this or any other year for Washington children.

Saturday on Purpose

The baby elephants, Ashok and Shanti, are due to disembark in New York April 12.

They will be accompanied by their faithful mahout (elephant-boy). Details about him were disclosed yesterday by the Embassy:

Mahout From Childhood

His name is Babajan. He is 21 years old. He was born in Mysore and has followed the profession of a mahout from early childhood.

The elephants come as symbols of peace.

Ashok, the boy, is 11 months old, 791 pounds, 4 feet high. He is named after the great Indian Emperor Asoka, who in the third century B. C. abandoned war for peace, his edicts prolaiming the doctrine of nonviolence.

Shanti, the girl, is 1 year old, 1043 pounds, 4 feet 1 inch high. Her name means "peace in Sanskrit.

Three Pocketbook Snatchings In Hour Reported

Police reported three pocketbook snatchings within an hour last night.

Stephen Richardson, 43, 513 M st., sw., told police he was grabbed by two men at 4th and L sts., sw., at about 8:45 p. m. They took Richardson's wallet containing $49, which he said was his week's pay.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sigler, 208-A Bates st., nw., reported to police that as they neared their home about 9:45 a man approached from behind, and struck Mrs. Sigler twice, knocking her to the ground. He snatched her purse with $2. Sigler hit him in the face with two window shades he was carrying, but the assailant escaped.

Mrs. Sigler was treated at Sibley Hospital for hip, knee, and head injuries.

Flying Disc Photo Missed By Lensman

A veteran aerial photographer reported yesterday he missed a rare opportunity—a chance to snap a picture of a flying disc over Washington.

Charles Baptie, jr., 36, the photographer, and Charles A. Kulp, 26, his pilot, said they were flying at about 1500 feet yesterday when the strange object passed them with a "swishing" sound..

Baptie, taking aerial photographs, said they saw the object at about 3:15 p. m. a little east of the National Training School for Boys.

The right side of their Piper was open so Baptie could make pictures.

"I think I might have been able to get a picture if it had passed on the right instead of the left," he said. "It was several hundred feet wide of us."

Baptie said the object, round, flat and a foot or a foot and a half in diameter, passed out of sight within seconds.

"When the pilot heard it," Baptie said, "he said 'what the hell was that?' Then he saw the objects disappearing."

Baptie lives at 311 N. Piedmont st., Arlington. Kulp loves near the Springfield Airport off Shirley hwy.

Nation Needs A Diet Plan, Says Aiken

The Nation needs a plan which would guarantee a minimum nutritional diet for every citizen, Senator George D. Aiken, (R., Vt.) asserted yesterday.

The ranking minority member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry addressed a session of the Northeastern Dairy Conference at the Hotel Statler.

He asserted that more than 10 million persons in the United States are unable to buy the foods necessary for good health, and urged a "food allotment program" for which he has introduced bills at each session of Congress since 1943.

Under his plan, Government agencies would determine a minimum food allotment necessary to keep an average person strong and healthy, and the cost of such allotment. Through a system of coupons, the Government would fill in for each person the amount he is unable to purchase with his income.

W. B. Davis, Boston, general manager of the New England Milk Producers Cooperative Association, was elected president of the conference to succeed Leon A. Chapin of North Bangor, N. Y.

Other officers chosen included Ken Geyer, Hartford, Conn., vice president; Elmer N. Searls, Ithaca, N. Y., secretary; O. H. Hoffman, jr., Philadelphia, Pa., treasurer, all reelected; and B. J. Wealthy, Philadelphia, member of the executive committee.

Council Ousts Bladensburg Patrolman

Henry J. Nebel, former Bladensburg police chief, was dismissed from the force yesterday, and hereafter the town's law enforcement will be directed by its police committee.

The town council convened Thursday night and met until the wee hours yesterday to decide whether Nebel was guilty of four charges against him. It finally dismissed him, after clearing him on three of the four counts— including bribery—but finding him guilty of failure to stay on duty during official hours.

Town counsel George McLeish said yesterday that so far as the council is concerned, the incident is now closed. Any further action against Nebel, or for him, he said, must "come from sources outside Bladensburg."

Nebel was dismissed from the force as of yesterday, but the council voted to give him two weeks' additional pay.

Prior to the council's action, the post of town police chief already had been abolished by ordinance. In Nebel's stead has been appointed a two-man police commission composed of Leonard Simpson and John Campbell. They have been supervising activities of the police force for the past two months.

Until Nebel's dismissal, Bladensburg had a town force of three full-time men and one part-time man. The council has as yet taken no action to replace Nebel.

At Thursday night's hearing, Nebel was confronted with four charges drawn against him. They included accepting bribes, threatening to charge a witness with bribery if he did not deny that he had accepted a bribe; failure to enforce the laws of Maryland (specifically, the State's liquor laws), and failure to be on duty for a full tour of duty.

HAROLD E. STASSEN, president of the University of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Stassen (left), chat with Mrs. Homer Ferguson, wife of the Senator from Michigan, at a tea yesterday at the Congressional Club. Mr. Stassen addressed the club women, wives of Representatives and Senators, on "Education and Freedom"

Stassen Urges Brotherhood Teachings in Nation's Schools

Harold E. Stassen yesterday appealed to Washington's Congressional wives to use their influence in their home communities to help bring about a major change in this country's education practices.

The president of the University of Pennsylvania and former Governor of Minnesota was guest speaker at the tea given by the Congressional Club, whose members are wives of Congressmen and Senators.

Pointing out that half of this Nation's children have no contact with a religious organization, he said it is up to the schools to teach them brotherhood and "dignity of the human being."

It is difficult, however, in our present school system to "chart clearly how it is to be done," he continued.

Mrs. Carl Curtis, wife of the Representative from Nebraska, presided at the meeting, and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, wife of the Senator from Michigan, introduced Mr. Stassen.

8 Georgetown Homes Open on St. John's Tour

Almost 1000 Washingtonians and out-of-town visitors crowded into the eight Georgetown houses opened to the public yesterday to raise funds for a social welfare program of St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown parish.

Although most of the houses included in the tour are old Georgetown homes — historical as well as beautiful — there was a modern house included in the tour that caught the visitors' fancy. The J. Burke Wilkinson home at 3230 Reservoir rd. provoked many admiring "ohs!"

The more traditional Cornelius Bretsch home at 3147 P st. nw. was greatly admired, too, filled as it is with beautiful art objects from all over the world including Egypt where Mrs. Bretsch was once a princess.

Another group of eight houses will be open today from 2 to 6 p. m.

Included in today's tour is the home of the director of the National Gallery of Art, David Finley, and Mrs. Finley at 3318 O st. nw., which is noted for the many fine paintings inside, and the attractive doorway—the oldest in Georgetown.

Tickets can be purchased at any one of the houses during the hours of the tour. Tea will be served at the parish hall of St. John's Church from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m.

Your Figure, Madame

Teenagers Can Outgrow Youthful Fat

By Ida Jean Kain

ALL RIGHT, teen-agers, it's your turn again. You write that you could have so much more fun if you were not the short-dumpy type. Well, if you'll replace the foods that are adding the padding with foods that help you grow taller, you can outgrow the fat. Interested?

Some foods contain an abundance of calories without furnishing many of the essentials needed for growth. Other foods are not so high in calories but supply their full share of the growth-promoting materials. Those are the ones you want.

All you have to do is to be sure to eat the foods that will help you grow. Then by cutting down the accessory sodas and candy bars, everything will come out neat and tidy.

Milk Isn't Fattening

THE FOODS you need daily are milk, eggs, lean meat, vegetables, fruits and whole-grains. Milk heads the list for it is the most nearly perfect food there is. And don't get the notion that milk is fattening. A glass of whole milk has 160 calories. A soda contains 350, a chocolate malted milk 450, and a chocolate bar 400. See? Even sweet drinks furnish from 75 to 100 calories. Add them all up and what have you got? Padding!

Girls, you probably think I'm taking through my dietitian's cap when I tell you a good breakfast can help you outgrow the chubby fat. But it can. Please try it . . . Have an orange, or fruit juice, an egg and toast and a glass of milk for breakfast . . . All that, you'll object. Yes, but breakfast is to take the place of the midmorning peanut crunch and the soft drink.

Eat Hearty Lunch

HAVE a good lunch, too. If you eat at the school cafeteria, have a regular lunch—fish, eggs or cheese, or whatever is offered, a vegetable, a piece of bread and a glass of milk. Skip the dessert. If you carry your lunch, take two thin slices of bread with cheese or a hard-cooked egg or lean meat, a raw tomato or carrot sticks and celery, and fruit. And drink a glass of milk with lunch or after school.

At dinner eat whatever the family has, but do not take seconds. Have fruit for dessert. And don't eat before going to bed. In other words, eat three good meals a day and "junk" all between-meal snacks.

ONE TEEN-AGER asked me to pass along these tips to her "sister sufferers": "Drink the milk first, eat slowly, and don't mind when anyone laughs at you. Stay with it and you'll have the last laugh." While eating to normalize her weight, our chubby teen-ager grew up 2 inches which, as she says, helps enormously.

Harrison School Open House Sunday

The school, endowed by the late Julius Garfinckel, provides a home and education for women who must earn their own livelihood.

PEO Chapter Elects

Newly elected officers of Chapter G, PEO Sisterhood, are Mrs. William B. Barton, president; Mrs. Allen H. Gardner, vice president; Mrs. Walter S. Harban, recording secretary; Mrs. Elmer S. Frazier, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Burt L. Knowles, treasurer; Mrs. Dudley S. Bright, chaplain, and Mrs. William M. Richardson, guard. Mrs. Barton and Mrs. Gardner will also serve as delegates.

D. C. Clearings Leap 13%, Set 3-Month Peak

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington bank clearings in the first quarter this year soared 13½ percent to set a new record for the period.

George H. Bright, manager of the Clearing House Association, reported yesterday that check transactions aggregated $1,049,306,427 in the first three months against $914,951,813 in the corresponding 1949 period.

Clearings last month totaled $376,127,107, a new March peak and 12½ percent higher than the same month last year.

Check turnover is considered one of the best barometers of business activity. The high rate here apparently reflects continued excellent retail trade, heavy tax payments, high pay rolls, a busy automotive trade and a generally prosperous business level.

	1950	1949
January	$371,334,453	$296,546,165
February	301,844,866	283,991,625

Two more western Pennsylvania coal mines have shut down permanently reportedly because of a reduction in coal demand. . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 132,856 units, slightly lower than the previous week's 134,167 cars and trucks. . . . Westinghouse Electric Corp. reported that 5000 employes last year divided $117,354 in cash awards based on suggestions.

RETAIL PARLEY: A three-day parley of the American Retail Federation will open Monday in the Shoreham Hotel. More than 200 of the Nation's leading retailers and executives of the federation's 53 members associations will attend the session. Highlight will be an address Tuesday night by Senator Robert A. Taft on "Are We Heading for Financial Disaster?"

C. & P. OUTLAYS: Second-quarter outlays totaling $2,381,000 have been authorized by directors of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Additional dial equipment for the Woodley center at a cost of $292,000 was approved. The project will provide 2400 more subscriber lines. The rest of the second-quarter outlay will be for a large number of relatively small projects.

Commission Asks New Jail In Alexandria

Terming overcrowding in the Alexandria jail "deplorable and inhuman," the city's jail commission has again recommended that a new prison be built.

The recommendation was made in a report to Judge William P. Woolls of the Corporation Court, released by court officials yesterday. It followed the three-man commission's quarterly inspection of the building last week.

The commission—David C. Book, Charles E. Slagle and Dr. James A. Gooch—noted overcrowding as the principal shortcoming. At the time of its inspection, it reported, it found 129 prisoners in the building, designed for a normal capacity of 78.

The commission found the jail structurally sound and in good repair, and reported the health of inmates good "except for a few colds." It found the jail's dispensary in "excellent condition," the report said.

In recommending that "immediate plans" for a new jail be considered, the commission suggested that the new structure be built in an adjacent area of Fairfax County "subject to annexation." City officials are in process of preparing an annexation suit against the county for an undeveloped area south and west of the city.

Other recommendations called for installation of wire mesh on second-floor windows to prevent prisoners from dropping lines outside "for the receipt of objects;" at least three additional guards to supplement the present staff of eight and a siren to sound the alarm in the event of the jail's only telephone should be disabled during an escape attempt.

State, Defense Rest in Trial Of Bednasek

Iowa City, Iowa, March 31 (AP). The murder trial of Robert Bednasek, 24, University of Iowa psychology senior, was recessed for the weekend today after both prosecution and defense rested their cases.

Bednasek

Judge James P. Gaffney said it would be impossible to complete closing arguments and instructions to the jury Saturday and have a verdict by Sunday—Palm Sunday. He said some jurors wanted to attend church.

Bednasek is accused of the strangulation slaying last December of Margaret Anne (Gee-Gee) Jackson, 20, a campus beauty he had been dating and to whom he formerly had been engaged.

The State sought to show Bednasek killed the coed because of jealousy and fear of losing her. The defense attempting to show death was accidental.

Bednasek reiterated from the witness stand today he and Miss Jackson had placed their hands on each others' throats "in a playful manner" just prior to her death in his roominghouse.

Lewis Meriam Quits County Council Post

Dr. Lewis Meriam of Kensington, has resigned from the Montgomery County Council because of pressure of private business, it was learned yesterday.

Dr. Meriam

Dr. Meriam, vice president of the Brookings Institution, said he is currently engaged in a large survey of health services on the national scale which requires his availability at all times.

Pointing out that the council's legislative and budget sessions are coming up in May and June, he said it would not be "right" for him to remain on the council and vote on these important matters when he would be unable to fully participate in hearings, investigations, debate and discussion on them.

Senate DP Vote Due Wednesday; Debate on Monday

The Senate agreed yesterday to vote next Wednesday on hotly disputed legislation to revise the 1948 displaced persons law.

Beginning Monday at noon, the time for debating the legislation will be divided equally between the opposing sides in the scrap.

The legislation was laid aside by the Senate March 8 after eight days of heated debate. It came before the Senate again yesterday under an agreement entered into at that time.

Two measures are before the Senate. One was recommended by the Judiciary Committee, under the leadership of Senator McCarran (D., Nev.). The other is a substitute proposed by 18 Senators.

'Keyed Up' Would Suffer Most From Radiation, Expert Says

Baltimore, March 31 (AP).—Do you get keyed up easily?

If you do, a noted radiologist believes you would suffer more from radiation sickness if an atom bomb exploded nearby than a person with a more stolid temperament.

Dr. Russell H. Morgan, radiologist in chief of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, gave that report last night at a medical seminar on protection against atomic weapons.

He gave this example:

At Hopkins, he and his associates gave a certain group of patients dramamine to counteract gastrointestinal symptoms of radiation sickness. Another group was given capsules that looked like dramamine but contained nothing but glucose.

Patients in both groups reacted practically the same.

A third group, however, who was told it would not receive treatment against the radiation sickness became a great deal worse than the actual effect of the sickness.

He attributed this to this group becoming keyed up when they learned no preventive treatment was coming.

Texan Attacks NLRB Switch To Labor Dept.

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A Texas Democrat yesterday took the lead in attacking President Truman's Reorganization Plan No. 6, which would give the Secretary of Labor the minimum wage and hour powers now held by the Wage-Hour Administrator.

Representative Wingate H. Lucas, a member of the House Labor Committee, denounced Plan 6 as a move to end the "impartiality" of administration of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Lucas maintained that by the law establishing his office the Secretary of Labor would have to show favor to the workers in any disputes with employers.

Lucas is author of a House resolution urging rejection of Plan No. 6. The plan becomes effective automatically in 60 days unless either chamber of Congress turns it down in that period.

"Can a department which by law, by organization and by philosophy is set up to advocate labor's interests, administer impartially and fairly a great statute affecting the rights and obligations of both employers and employes?" Lucas asked the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments.

Lucas told the committee that in both the Senate and House several attempts have been made to transfer the wage-hour powers to the Labor Secretary, but that in each instance Congress thwarted the move. He also maintained that Plan No. 6 failed to conform with the Hoover Report.

Funds Drive Extended by Red Cross

Because the annual Red Cross campaign for funds has not reached its $1,039,000 goal for the Washington area, it was extended yesterday to a report meeting on April 11, according to Daniel W. Bell, general campaign chairman.

At a meeting yesterday at the United States Chamber of Commerce building, workers reported a total of $910,482, or 87.36 percent of the goal. This amount came in 230,472 gifts.

Failure to reach the goal brought a special appeal from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower who was in the city.

"I cannot conceive," he wrote, "of any greater service that a citizen could now perform, individually, for our country's welfare, than to do his full share in seeing that the Red Cross drive is a complete success."

Columnist Marquist Childs was principal speaker.

"If," he said, "we allow Government to encroach on the voluntary fields you and I are interested in, we shall lose one of the most valuable elements of American life, the element of voluntary service."

Three divisions reported yesterday they were above their campaign goals. They are, Residential, 102.94 percent; City, 101.33 percent, and Alexandria, 104.14 percent.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, chairman of the Government division, urged workers to carry their drive in that division to completion of the goal. They reported a total of 85.57 percent of their goal. Nine ambulatory patients at Walter Reed Hospital were guests of honor at the meeting.

2 Ex-Boxers Fined in Row At Courthouse

A quarrel that almost turned into a fist fight just outside Judge James R. Kirkland's courtroom brought contempt of court fines against two men yesterday.

They are Anthony Petro, 32, of 3507 Varnum st., Brentwood, Md., who was ordered to pay a $25 fine or serve two days in jail, and Russell M. Davis, 34, address listed as 225 15th st. se., who was sentenced to pay $100 or serve 15 days in jail.

Both men are boxers. Petro fought as an amateur and Davis, court officials said, was a former prizefighter.

They were witnesses in a robbery trial in which Davis' father, Jesse M. Davis, was the victim, having lost $583 in a holdup.

The two men were waiting in a witness room near Judge Kirkland's room in the Standard Oil Building when they began shouting at each other over testimony in the case. Petro told the court that he was threatened by Davis. Petro, according to the charge, told Davis to "step outside."

Hodge to Direct 32,000 Airborne In April Maneuver

Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, commanding general of the Army's Fifth Corps at Fort Bragg, N. C., will command an airborne task force of 32,000 in a coming maneuver called "Swarmer."

Hodge's designation as task force commander was announced yesterday by Lieut. Gen. Lauris Norstad, the maneuver commander.

The mission of his troops will be to establish an "airhead," and then to develop it against the opposition of a defending force of "aggressor" troops. The maneuver will be held in North Carolina in late April.

Maj. Gen. William H. Turner of the Air Force will be both Norstad's deputy maneuver commander and operations of Hodge's deputy task force commander for operations.

FTC Charge Names Hair Experts, Inc.

The Federal Trade Commission accused Hair Experts, Inc., of Detroit yesterday of false and misleading claims that it can grow hair on a bald head.

The complaint said that all the ingredients and methods of treatment offered by the firm "have been used without success for many years in an effort to correct falling hair, to grow hair and to prevent baldness."

Pope Pius XII—Priest and Statesman

Pontiff to Dictators: 'Day of Reckoning Comes'

Kees Van Hoek, a native of The Hague and now an Irish citizen, has been a correspondent in London, Geneva and the United States. His first biography of Pius XII appeared in 1939. After much research and a private audience with the Pope last fall, Van Hoek has written in "Pope Pius XII, Priest and Statesman," a full and vivid description of the man and his career, from a delicate boy in Rome to supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic world. The biography is presented by The Washington Post during the present Holy Year in 24 daily installments.

By Kees Van Hoek

Foreign Affairs Writer of the Irish Times

XIV "Work of Justice Is Peace"

CRUSHED within a month by the vastly superior armies of Germany and Soviet Russia, Poland was declared by its violators to have "ceased to exist as a state." Not so to the Pontiff. Obviously laboring under strong personal emotion, he addressed a delegation of Poles, led by the Primate Cardinal Hlond, saying: "Poland has earned the right of a generous brotherly sympathy from the world, awaiting the hour of her national resurrection. That, you can expect as surely as the flowers of your land wait underneath the thick carpet of snow over frozen earth for spring that will come again."

When he received the credentials of the new envoy of Lithuania, then threatened by Soviet demands (which would cost her her liberty within a year) he uttered a grave warning to all Christendom, pointing out the "immeasurable dangers for the salvation of souls now that over the face of Europe which is Christian right down to its foundations, the dark shadow of the thought and work of the enemies of God is growing longer, closer and more meacing every day. In such circumstances, more than at any other period of its history, the preservation and the defense of our Christian heritage take on a decisive importance for the future destiny of Europe and of each of its peoples, great or small."

When Russia attacked Protestant Finland in the winter of 1939, the Pope branded in his first Christmas allocution to the Sacred College of Cardinals in the strongest possible terms 'this premeditated aggression against a small, work-loving, peaceful people on the pretext of the threat which never existed and which would not have been possible."

Engrossing Document

ALL THE admonitions and prayers of these eventful first months of his reign are crystallized in his first Encyclical, Summi Pontificatus, issued to the Archbishops and Bishops of the world on the eve of the Feast of Christ the King, the 29th of October, 1939.

Being the program of his Pontificate it is an engrossing document, as closely argued as it is outspoken. Renewing in plain language the denunciations of his predecessor, Pope Pius XII lashes out against "the error which pretends to absolve the civil authority from any dependence what ever on the Supreme Being, making it the primary cause and the absolute master of man, of society, and of all ties with the transcendent law deriving from God."

The initial success built on these falsehoods might dazzle and bewilder simple folk for a time, but the day of reckoning always comes. Prophesies the Pope:

"It is quite true that power based on such weakness and on such an unsteady foundation can attain at times, under certain circumstances, material successes which are apt to arouse wonder in superficial observers; but the moment comes when the inevitable law triumphs, striking down all that has been constructed on a hidden or open disproportion between the greatness of the material or outward success and the weakness of the inner values and moral foundations."

Rights of Consciences

AND thinking of the suffering and fears of countless parents, those innumerable afflictions "of which no statistics are able to speak," he warns the State that it can go no further, for "the more burdensome become the material sacrifices demanded by the State of individuals and of families, the more sacred and inviolable, too, must be the rights of their consciences. Goods, blood it can demand, but the souls redeemed by God, never . . ."

From his exalted and impartial observation post the Pope then scrutinizes the international scene. He castigates the world's departure from the basic principles of international morality, as the source of the present war. "These principles demand respect for the rights of every nation to independence, to life and to the possibility of progressive evolution in the ways of civilization. They demand, also, faithfulness to stipulated and sanctioned treaties in conformity with the principles of the rights of man.

There is no doubt," continues the Encyclical, "that the preliminary and necessary condition of all common, pacific life between the nations, the very soul of juridical relations between them, is to be found in mutual trust, in the expectation and conviction of respect for the plighted word. But to consider in principle that treaties are ephemeral, and to take upon oneself the tacit authority to rescind them unilaterally on the day that they are no longer convenient, means the destruction of all reciprocal confidence between the nations. Natural order would be thrown into chaos; trenches of division, impossible to overcome, would be dug between the peoples and the nations. . . . These are the conceptions which have brought the world to the present horrible abyss . . ."

Universal Morality

FROM the gloom of the moment, the statesman looks forward to the peace to come, the new order which is to safeguard Europe from repeated destruction.

To attain that great aim the Pope calls for a spiritual re-education and for religious regeneration. For "the profound and ultimate root of the present evils is the refusal to accept a standard of universal morality in the life of the individual, in social life and in international relations; that is, disregard and forgetfulness of the natural law whose foundation is in God. When God is denied, every basis of morality is undermined. The much vaunted laicization of society has caused the reappearance of signs of a corrupt and corrupting paganism in regions where for centuries Christian civilization had shone."

Having denounced that Nazi-Fascist heresy, racialism, in a sentence of classic beauty, recalling that "human solidarity and charity which is dictated by our common origin and by the sacrifice of Christ's redemption," the Supreme Pontiff, immediately after his return to his capital, consecrated with his own hands before the high altar of St. Peter's, four colored Bishops, a Hindu, a Chinese, a Negro, and a native of Madagascar, as his "Venerable Brethern."

Grill Accused Of Selling Beer To Young Girls

Charges that the Cotton Club Grill, 1553 Benning rd. ne., served beer to two girls, 14 and 16, were heard yesterday by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The restaurant's attorney admitted the girls had been served. But a waitress testified one of the girls looked the required 18 years, and the other said she was 21.

The girls testified they had been invited into the restaurant January 28 by two men and were served one beer apiece. The ABC board took the case under advisement.

$900 Cigarette Theft

Arlington police yesterday reported thieves stole 620 cartons of cigarettes valued at $900 from a Safeway store in the 5800 block of Washington blvd., where an unsuccessful attempt also was made to drill open an office safe.

When April Comes

When April comes I take a walk . . . And look up at the sky . . . And silently I count the clouds . . . That seem to pass me by . . . I know the winter days are gone . . . And spring is here at last . . . While cold and frosty memories . . . Are melted in the past . . . I dream of parks and flowers and . . . The sunlight all around . . . Where lovers lean against a tree . . . But never touch the ground . . . Where everything is wonderful . . . And perfect as can be . . . And every sound that fills the air . . . Is like a melody . . . I wish my April fairyland . . . Would last for evermore . . . With gentle thoughts and loving dreams . . . Of happiness in store.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Here's a Peachy Way to Kill 5 Minutes

Most of us use dial telephones several times each day. We're familiar with the fact that each numbered hole shows several letters of the alphabet. And we know that the numbers run from 1 to 9 and end with a zero.

But if you'd like to test your memory—or maybe it's your powers of observation — try this:

Without looking at a dial phone, try to remember which letters go with which numbers. It's not as easy as you might think.

THESE MODERN TIMES

The latest rash of flying saucer stories moved Grandpa to observe the other day:

"We used to hear wild tales like that when I was a boy, too. The difference is that in those days we could laugh at the stories without worrying about how silly we'd feel if they later turned out to be true."

WHALE, WHADDA YA KNOW

Harry Traub's research into strange laws yields up another piperoo. Harry says that Penal Code 6260, California State Vehicle Act, Chapter XVIII, paragraph 187, reads:

"It is a misdemeanor to shoot at any kind of game, bird or mammal, except a whale, from an automobile or airplane."

Offhand, I'd say that law constitutes rank discrimination against whales.

GESUNDHEIT! $1000 PLEASE

A local auto dealer was telling us the other night about his first and last visit to a wholesale used car auction.

"It's very confusing," he said. "The auctioneer sounds like he's selling tobacco. The buyers don't utter a sound; they bid by secret signs.

"While I was watching, my nose itched, and I scratched it. Later I found out I had bought a car. Now I'm afraid to go back. I might have to sneeze, and I don't know whether I could afford it."

RULES IS RULES

Several readers have asked recently for an explanation of those "United States of America" license tags which are seen occasionally in the District. (Don't confuse them with U. S. Government tags, which are commonplace.)

My stock answer has been: "I've had the explanation in the column several times. They're privately owned vehicles belonging to Armed Forces personnel overseas. I think the top fee is $6 for any passenger car."

But one reader raised a new question. He asked: "After the car is shipped back to the States, can the owner use those bargain-rate tags indefinitely? There's no year on them."

A good point. Especially in view of the fact that an increasing number of U.S.A. tags seem to be plying our streets. So I went to Traffic Director George Keneipp for the law.

"They're completely illegal the moment they appear here," said Keneipp, "and District police have been instructed to pick up any they encounter.

"The law says that we have the right to grant reciprocity to those States or foreign jurisdictions which extend special exemptions to District tags. Even if the Army could be considered a 'State' or a 'foreign jurisdiction,' it grants no waivers to District tags in overseas areas, so we are not permitted to waive our rules for Army personnel.

"The Corporation Counsel says that's the law, even though it does seem pretty tough on a returning serviceman.

"The only thing I can suggest to these owners is that they immediately wire their home States for tags; or, if they're going to remain in the District, buy tags here."

Buddha 'Prays' for Lattimore

By Drew Pearson

In Baltimore, a weather-worn but merry-eyed Mongolian oracle, swathed in Oriental robes, is saying "fierce prayers" for his friend, Owen Lattimore, as he arrives from Afghanistan to face the charges of Senator McCarthy.

Pearson

The old man is the Dilowa Hutukhtu or Living Buddha, spiritual leader of Mongolia's Buddhists, whose flock now consists of two Mongolian refugees. These three are the only foreign "agents" the FBI has been able to find who landed on the West Coast and got in touch with Lattimore.

But instead of being Soviet agents, the three Mongolians are actually refugees from communism with a price on their heads. They were persuaded by Lattimore to flee to this country instead of Tibet, and are now cooperating with the State Department in the cold war against communism in the Far East.

When the Living Buddha learned of McCarthy's red charges against Lattimore, the old oracle asked Mrs. Lattimore, "Are these accusations fierce?"

"Yes," admitted Mrs. Lattimore.

"Then I will say fierce prayers for Mr. Lattimore," he promised.

The Living Buddha reiterated his faith in Lattimore in an exclusive interview for this column.

Mongolian Visit

In 1925 this writer took a long, tough trip over the Gobi Desert to the domain of the Living Buddha in order to ascertain what progress the Soviet was making in its effort to penetrate Mongolia as a stepping stone toward seizing all Asia.

Had Senator McCarthy known about my trip, doubtless he would have had me investigated by the Senate for driving in a Soviet-owned car. But since the Russians controlled all automobiles, it was the only way to go.

My chauffeur, incidentally, was Count Sergei Witte, son of the Czarist Foreign Minister who signed the Treaty of Portsmouth ending the Russo-Japanese War, and he was just as unhappy about the Soviet regime as Senator McCarthy is now. Some day, perhaps, the Senator will learn that everyone seen talking to a Russian or even working with the Russians is not necessarily a Soviet spy—though it does seem that the Senator learns the hard way.

When I visited Urga the Living Buddha was a much younger man, living in the western part of Mongolia not far from the Siberian border. He had not only great religious influence but was virtually the temporal ruler of that area; so it was significant that Owen Lattimore, who years ago realized the importance of this Russian border area, should have won the friendship of this key leader.

Living Buddha Talks

Speaking sing-song Mongolian in Baltimore, and interpreted brokenly by his two fellow refugees, the Living Buddha, now 67, dramatically waved his bony fingers to emphasize how baffled he was that Lattimore could be fighting against communism so vigorously, yet at the same time be accused as this country's top Communist spy.

As for his own plans, the Living Buddha hopes to establish a church-in-exile in the United States to save it from being stamped out altogether by the Communists. The last ramparts of his religion are about to fall to the Communists in Tibet, he fears.

This form of Buddhism is practiced chiefly in Tibet and Mongolia. It differs from Buddhism as practiced in India, Burma and China, much as the orthodox Catholic Church differs from the Roman Catholic Church. The Living Buddha is second only to Tibet's Dalai Lama in spiritual influence over millions of Tibetans and Mongolians.

Already, in Mongolia, the Reds have purged the church and subjugated it to the political will of Moscow. As far back as 1931, the Living Buddha became the Cardinal Mindszenty of Mongolia. He was tried on trumped-up charges of treason and sentenced to five years. The sentence was suspended, however, because of public resentment, and the Living Buddha fled for his life.

His mission now, he feels, is to preserve his religion in this country that it may survive communism and not die from the earth.

Helping State Department

Aside from his religious preoccupation, the Living Buddha spends his time ransacking his memory for basic data about Mongolia, which is compiled by John Hopkins University under Lattimore's direction, and is made available to the State Department—a vital record about an area where the United States has no observers.

Born in the Year of the Monkey, 1884, the Living Buddha was the son of peasants who owned only 20 sheep, four cows and two horses. A layer of ice sheathed the grass and strange lights appeared in the sky that year, so the baby became known as the "Lord of the Ice Plague."

About the time of his birth the reigning Dilowa died and the "Cheijong," or "Inspired Men" of Buddhism, had to find a successor. For three years they deliberated over the names of 40 babies born just as the old Dilowa died. Finally there came a sign which convinced them which of the 40 was to become the Living Buddha. His young eyes spotted the dead Dilowa's silver drinking bowl, and he exclaimed, "That Is My Bowl."

That is how the present Living Buddha, now in Baltimore, was ordained as the new Dilowa Hutukhtu, and later confirmed by the Emperor of China himself.

Bid for U. S. Friendship

American - Argentine relations are expected to take an important turn for the better as a result of the recent trip to Buenos Aires of Assistant Secretary of State Edward Miller.

Though Miller merely expected to pay a routine call on President Peron, he found the Argentine dictator surprisingly cooperative.

Peron showed Miller how he had stamped out Communism, how the economic welfare of the working classes had improved and, most important of all, emphasized the hope that Argentine-United States relations should be more friendly.

Miller replied that the United States had no desire to have enemies and that Argentina's present isolation was of her own choosing. In view of Peron's constant needling of the United States, he said, it was difficult for the State Department to try to be friendly.

"But I have my radicals who make it very difficult for me," Peron explained. "They are just as isolationist as some of your extremists in the Senate."

The Argentine President followed up with a full-dress meeting of the economic council, at which Miller sat on the President's right. Ambassador Stanton Griffis was also present, together with the Minister of Foreign Affairs and Juan Cost Sere, Director General of Economics. The latter was designated by Peron as the chief spokesman and gave a very intelligent exposition of Argentine-American relations. He concluded, "our chief hope is to encourage United States investments."

Squeezing U. S. Investor

This gave the Assistant Secretary a chance really to open up on the unfortunate treatment given American investors in Argentina.

"The best way to get American investments," Miller said, "is by giving better treatment to the investors who are already in your country. You can't expect more capital to come to Argentina when you are throttling the capital you already have here."

"You are a boxing fan," said Ambassador Griffis, turning to Finance Minister Ramon A. Cereijo. "I have seen you at prize fights. All right. Our companies have taken so much punishment, they are groggy. Either let up on them or else knock them out."

The finance minister seemed to understand this comparison. At any rate, Peron arranged for a meeting between his finance experts and the commercial counselors of the United States Embassy next day in order to iron out difficulties.
